Republican Convention Completes Its Work

Selects Joseph M. Fowler for Recommendation for Nomination for County Judge and George Suiter for Coroner—Delegates and Alternates to State Convention.

After spending one hour in selecting Harcourt J. Pratt for recommendation to enrolled voters of Ulster county for the nomination for congressman to succeed Congressman Charles B. Ward; Senator Arthur F. Bouton of Roxbury to succeed himself; Millard Davis of the town of Rochester to succeed Assemblyman Simon B. Van Wagenen, and County Clerk John H. Saxe to succeed himself, the Republican county convention on Thursday afternoon completed its work by selecting County Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Coroner George Suiter for recommendation for nomination to succeed themselves and also elected 10 delegates and 10 alternates to the state convention to be held at Rochester in September.

The selection of Judge Fowler was made on the seventh roll call; the selection of Coroner Suiter required one roll call, and the election of delegates and alternates to the state convention was by viva voce vote.

The afternoon session of the convention, which opened shortly after three o'clock, lasted more than three hours. The heat in Kingston Opera House was intense, but most of the delegates remained until the contest for county judge was over, although many left the building after each roll call to patronize ice cream and soda water stands and cigar stores, whose supplies of cigarettes and ice water diminished rapidly under the delegates' onslaughts.

Seely Named Fowler.
When the convention reconvened for the afternoon session, County Chairman Philip Elting at once recognized the Rev. Frank B. Seely, D. D., who placed Judge Fowler in nomination. Dr. Seely said that a minister was supposed to recommend, and as this was a convention of recommendations he thought to feel at ease but in reality it did not on account of the seriousness of the matter in hand. He had previously voted the Republican ticket for 30 years but this was the first political convention he had attended.

Courts in Scant Respect.
In these days when courts and officials of courts are in scant respect from the general public, when press, pulpit and political parties are being urged to work together for the national good, there is no more important thing than a political convention to consider that the judiciary, which is the only firm foundation of free institutions.

The Republican party in Ulster county, he said, has been singularly fortunate in having so many men of unimpeachable integrity and legal acumen to offer to the people as members of the judiciary, but among all these distinguished men, one stands out preeminent, who by training, temperament and ability is peculiarly fitted to occupy the distinguished position of judge of the county court of Ulster county. Therefore, he considered it a privilege and one of the greatest honors which ever came to him to be asked to present, the name of Joseph M. Fowler.

The Most Illustrious.
For more than a quarter of a century he had enjoyed his friendship and treasured his service. As he recalled the story of his candidate's life and work in this county, he recalled the names of men who had made illustrious records in its judicial history, and among these names none shone with greater lustre than that of Joseph M. Fowler. He knew him when he was in college. After leaving college, he had come back to this county. When the call came for men to fight to right the wrongs inflicted by Spain on Cuba and on our own country, he had enlisted promptly and he had proudly seen him march away with Company M to fight in the war with Spain. Then during the World War he had given indefatigable service to the Red Cross, and only the recording angel had the full record of all he did. He was proud of his efforts to rid the county of the scourge of the white plague, and he liked to recall the hours and money he had devoted to the county; there was not a worthy cause that had not had his wholehearted and generous support. He had given unstintingly of his own time and money as president of the chamber of commerce, and the Klansmen had considered him an honored member.

When Heart Strings Were Torn.
He liked also to recall the five years his candidate had spent in the assembly, responding to his county's call for political service. His mind ran back twelve years to the time when his own heart strings had been torn when a man he loved, Theodore Roosevelt, had broken away from his party. How many people knew that the Bull Moose party came to his candidate and offered him the nomination for county judge but that he declined it and went down to defeat by 110 votes.

Nothing was so fine as when he deliberately went down to defeat out of loyalty to the Republican party, defeat which he could have avoided so easily and could have been overwhelmingly elected instead of the candidate who accepted the combined Bull Moose and Democratic nominations.

Six years ago he was nominated and elected by an overwhelming majority. While he was not a lawyer and could not speak as a lawyer, he knew of no man who ever had commanded greater respect from the forces of honor of his county. One part of his work he did know—as judge of the children's court. He had gone to him time and again and had been met manfully and mercifully and many a child today has a chance in life because of him. His past record deserves and merits continued support, and it was a pleasure to recommend to the convention a man of such fine mind and judicial temperament, who loves the county which loves him—Joseph M. Fowler.

Pessenden Seeks Fowler.
Newton H. Pessenden seconded the nomination of Judge Fowler, saying that as this was the second speech he had undertaken before the convention in one day he would be brief. He had known him fifteen years. It had been a great pleasure to practice before his court at practically every term for six years. He knew personally of his ability as a lawyer and his fearlessness on the bench and no finer man ever held this office.

Cashin Nominates Cook.
John M. Cashin, assistant United States district attorney, said that in speaking after such an illustrious and very dear and respected personal friend as Dr. Seely, he felt like a man who once lived in Kingston who was known as "Dutch Billy." When he came to America "Billy" had no money, but somebody gave him enough to go in the peddling business. "Billy" could not speak English, but he devised a scheme of getting behind a peddler who could speak it, and as the other peddler called out his wares, "Billy" managed to stammer out, "Me got some, too."

"I've got a candidate to name, and in spite of all the good qualities named by my friend Dr. Seely in reference to his candidate, I'm going to say to my candidate's good qualities, 'Me got some, too,' and I'm going to violate all convention precedents in the way of nominating speeches by telling you right off the bat that I'm going to name Andrew J. Cook."

Examining Judiciary Politics.
First, he wished to refer to Mr. Cook's candidacy from a political standpoint. Somebody might say that politics should be divorced from the judiciary, and whoever said that was right. But when a man has accomplished things in a political way and he becomes a candidate for judicial office, it is also right that the political things should be examined with care, and since Dr. Seely had referred to his candidate's political activity, it was proper to speak of Mr. Cook's activity. Mr. Cook always had been and always will be a rock-ribbed Republican, always found on election day with his coat off, working for the success of the Republican ticket, from top to bottom. In 1912, much against his will, he was drafted by his party to run for assemblyman against a man who was considered practically unbeatable, but he beat him. During his service in the assembly he had done many things for Ulster county, not the least worthwhile of which had been the introduction of the bill which resulted in the construction of the Rondout-Creek Bridge.

A Clean Fighter.
As a lawyer, Mr. Cook stood as one of the leaders of the bar. Legally, it might be said he stood 100 per cent, with keen, analytical mind, always active in the cause of righteousness and always fighting his battles clean, and above-board.

When Men Are Elevated.
If those two qualities were present in a man, there was a third quality, which was most important: Is he human? Has he those qualities by which every man and woman would feel free to go and talk to him just as if he was not on the bench, and would he give men and women the same attention he would if he had not been elevated to the bench? Sometimes men have been elevated to the bench who after a time—sometimes before they get there believe they were not moulded of the same clay as other human beings but considered their clay was better.

Uncle Meets Nephew in Jail

William Lowery of Creek Locks Sampled West Strand Hooch and Is Arrested—His Uncle Later Sampled Some of the Same—Same Result.

William Lowery, 24 years old of Creek Locks, came to Kingston Thursday intending to return to New York city and his work. He visited the lower section of the city where he sampled some of the hooch to be had there, with the result that he was picked up drunk about 3:30 o'clock that afternoon by Officer Keresman.

About an hour later Officer Keresman while walking through West Strand ran across Richard Lowery, an uncle of William, who also had sampled hooch. The results proved the same and the relatives were reunited at the Ulster county jail.

This morning Judge Schirick in police court fined each of the Lowerys $5.

Joseph Moon, married and with four children, was found asleep about 1:20 o'clock this morning back of Frank Ditch's place on Cornell street by Officer William Deegan.

Later in the day Moon faced Judge Schirick in police court. As it was the first time he had been arrested, and as a job was awaiting him at the tuberculosis hospital, Judge Schirick gave Moon another chance and discharged him.

Menino Asola, a Spaniard, found loitering around Greenkill avenue several nights ago by Officer Burger, was given half an hour to leave Kingston.

Plan Biggest Rail Merger

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 8.—Plans were said to be the largest railroad merger in history, the absorption by Oris P. and Mantle J. Vansweringen, owners of the Nickel Plate system, of four other railroad properties. The proposed consolidation, an outline of which became known today, involves $1,500,000,000 capital and nearly 11,000 miles of track.

The roads to be taken over by the Nickel Plate—the New York, Chicago and St. Louis—are the Erie, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake and Ohio, and the Hocking Valley. Wheeling and Lake Erie, with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia may be taken in later, it was reported, although not mentioned in the preliminary announcement.

The consolidation, according to semi-official announcement, will be effected through exchange of stock and through leases of physical properties and is subject to approval of the interstate commerce commission. Terms of the proposed merger are to be submitted to the various boards of directors at meetings to be called immediately and formal offer will be made to stockholders before the end of this month, it was said.

Democrats Have One Contest

Second Ward Will Furnish County Convention With Two Sets of Delegates—No Other Contests Reported.

The credentials committee of the Democratic County Convention will be called upon to make its choice between two sets of delegates on Monday, both of whom claim to have been elected from the first district of the Second Ward in this city.

It appears that the names of John A. Nock, John J. White, Jr., and Joseph S. Pessenden have been filed with the secretary of the Democratic county committee as the duly elected delegates. However about 8:20 on Wednesday night seven Democrats met at the polling place for that district and elected Joseph C. Hurley, William Powers and Michael Fitzgerald as delegates. The names of the last-named set have not been filed with the committee as yet.

No other contests have been reported.

MINOR AUTO ACCIDENTS REPORTED TO POLICE.

It was reported to the police Thursday that the auto of Mrs. Worf of No. 97 Abel street had collided with a car of Fred Smith of No. 127 Murray street at Broadway and Delaware avenue.

Ward Rowe of 118 Boulevard, reported having struck a trolley car at Broadway and Thomas street. The damage was slight.

It was reported to the police that John Roosa, a negro, had struck a motorcycle at Foxhall and Hasbrouck avenues Thursday evening.

Stores To Be Enlarged.
The two stores in the Mansion House building occupied by John J. Larkin as a shoe store and A. Kunst & Son as a clothing and gent's furnishing store will be enlarged. The stores will be deepened thirty feet. Later the front windows will be torn out and replaced with the more modern copper front which will add greatly to the general appearance of the building.

Senator Bouton Talks Politics

Being a Member of Senate Minority Means Harder Work—People Have Confidence in Coolidge and Dawes.

Senator Arthur F. Bouton of Roxbury, in accepting the designation by Ulster county Republicans for recommendation for the nomination for state senator at the primary election on Thursday, reviewed political conditions in New York state and the United States.

The past two years had been somewhat difficult for a Republican in the senate, he said, because Republicans had been in the minority, which meant harder work, and if he merited the endorsement he had received, it meant he must have worked hard. He felt he had done his duty.

Two years ago the Republicans did not accomplish all they expected in the state, with the result that the Democratic party promptly came forward with a plan by which, if enacted into law, the Republican party would have been put in the background for many years to come, with only slight chance of recovery. The Democrats had a carefully prepared program, sugar-coated so that even some Republicans thought it should be put over. But Republicans in the senate and assembly succeeded in holding it up, and it was doubtful if it would be attempted again without full Democratic control. With the ticket to be nominated at Rochester, Republicans felt they could go to victory.

Personally he would not say he had not made mistakes. A friend from Delhi told a friend in Roxbury he had made one mistake, whereupon the Roxbury friend said if he had made only one, his batting average was higher than anyone in the American or National League. But if a Republican senate is elected, he hoped to be a member of it.

Speaking of the Democratic National Convention, Senator Bouton said the radio had accomplished much for the benefit of the Republicans by broadcasting its proceedings because people gained an insight they could not obtain otherwise. He had found people who would accept Davis but would not swallow Bryan, and people who wanted to vote for Bryan but refused to stand for Davis. But to split between them was impossible.

The Republican National Convention at Cleveland, on the contrary, had selected men who invited the full confidence of the people. Nobody could compare with Calvin Coolidge, and the nomination of Dawes had been a wonderful accomplishment. When Dawes was comptroller of the currency he had developed great ability. Then he jumped in the World War and developed marvelous executive ability there. Coming home, he organized the Federal budget system which saved millions of dollars, and then he went to Europe and prepared the only plan which the nations concerned agreed to, the only thing that will work out their salvation.

Everywhere, said Senator Bouton, he heard only praise for President Coolidge, who had been so truly described as a man who does not talk much unless he has something to say, and then he says it in a way everybody understands.

The only danger was in overconfidence, but with harmony and the work Republicans are going to do at Rochester and the work Republicans would do in selecting high minded, clear thinking citizens for their county ticket, there was no question but that everything would work for the election of Coolidge and Dawes. Senator Bouton received close attention and was given hearty applause.

Charged With Grand Larceny

Hyman Levinson of Ellenville, charged by Levinson & Silvertits of Newburgh with grand larceny in the first degree, has been allowed his freedom on $3,000 bail, set by Recorder Decker. Levinson was arrested in his place of business in Ellenville on a warrant served by Officer John Mullarkey of the Newburgh police department. The charge against Levinson is that he issued a check for $100 to Levinson & Silvertits on a bank in which he had no money to satisfy the check. The case is to come to trial in police court at Newburgh on Monday. William Silvertits of the firm of Levinson & Silvertits charges that "this man Levinson has deliberately tried to defraud us; this is not the first check of the kind we have received from him. The others we have had to pass without making him any trouble, but we are done with that method of treating him. Levinson's mother went on his bail bond."

Will Eat Everything.
There will be an entertainment and vegetable supper this evening at the Franklin street A. M. E. Zion Church under the auspices of the ladies' and trustees board. Supper will be served from six o'clock until everything is eaten. The program is of especial interest to all.

Mason Property Sold.
Mrs. Adele Mason has sold her modern ten room residence property at 69 Marlin street to Frank DuFlon, real estate broker of 270 Fair street, for investment. After making a number of improvements Mr. DuFlon may place the property on the market for sale.

May Set Up Sea Base for Flyers

Heavy Ice Pack Off Greenland Village Present Serious Landing Problem to Army 'Round-the-World' Aviators.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
On board U. S. Cruiser Richmond, off Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 8.—(By International News Service.)—(By Wireless.)—On account of the heavy ice pack lying off Angmagssalik, Greenland, American army and navy officials may decide to establish a sea base for Lieut. Lowell Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson.

The next move in the "round-the-world" flight of the two American army flyers depends upon conditions at Angmagssalik. If the Danish supply ship Gertrud Rask is able to force her way through the ice in the next few days, the original plan will be carried out of having the two Yankee airmen make that Greenland port their next stopping place.

Officials are considering whether to wait for the Rask to reach Angmagssalik or to abandon that port as a landing place. If it is decided to eliminate Angmagssalik from the stopping places the only alternative will be to establish a sea base as there is no other Greenland village within the flying radius of the machines.

If a sea base is decided upon the planes will obtain their supplies from an American cruiser.

Lieut. Leigh Wade, one of the original four pilots, who was compelled to abandon the flight when his machine was forced down between the Orkneys and Iceland, has been advised that a machine has been fitted out for him with which he can rejoin his comrades either in Nova Scotia or at Boston.

Death in Wake of Two Tornadoes

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Aug. 8.—Five persons were reported dead today, a score or more injured and property damage running into thousands of dollars was recorded as a result of two tornadoes which leveled 20 square miles of growing grain, many farm houses, barns, a canning factory, uprooted trees and destroyed wire communication in western Wisconsin late yesterday, according to advices received here today.

The known dead:
Percy Walter, Bloomer, Wis.
Julius Neglen, farmer, residing southeast of Osseo, Wis.
Richard Secora, 25, living on a farm near New Auburn, Wis.

Two others were reported to have been killed near Bloomer.

The first of the tornadoes started in the northeastern part of Trempealeau county, near Osseo, Wisconsin, where it cut a path two miles wide and more than ten miles long in the direction of Black River Falls, Wis.

The second tornado, which appeared an hour later, descended at New Auburn, Wis., in Chippewa county, and moved south through Bloomer and spent its force about five miles south of the latter place.

Houses, barns, outbuildings, trees, telephone and telegraph lines were wrecked and many homes were reported unroofed at Black River Falls.

David Handler Injured Arms

Cadillac Car Driven by Abraham Handler Hits Pole at Saugerties Thursday, Resulting in Son Receiving Injuries to His Arms.

Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock the Cadillac touring car of Abraham Handler of this city, proceeding towards Malden and rounding the curve on the corner of Main street and Malden avenue, Saugerties, crashed head on into the telegraph pole nearby and was wrecked. The road was slippery at this time and the car skidded, causing the accident.

David, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Handler, had both arms injured and bruised and was taken to the office of Dr. James Krom, Saugerties, who attended him. Today an X-ray was taken of the injuries at the Kingston City Hospital. In the car were the Misses Florence McGuire and Mildred McTague and Mr. and Mrs. Abram Handler and family, all of this city. One of the women occupants was slightly injured. The accident was reported to the police.

Mr. Handler had the car taken to a garage before proceeding home.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR CRIMINAL ASSAULT.
State Troopers Metzger and Allen brought to the Ulster county jail at an early hour this morning Albert Jones, a negro, aged 19 years. He was arrested on a charge of criminal assault on Mary Mitchell, a white girl of East Kingston, her father being the complainant. The girl is 14 years of age and as she said she was afraid to go home the state troopers brought her along, and she was placed in charge of Mrs. Seth Jocelyn, who is the matron of the jail. Jones will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Walter Webber at Flatbush, town of Ulster.

Slayers Prepare To End Defense

School Companions Characterize Drunken Actions and Reading Detective Stories as "Queer"—End of Trial in Sight.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Criminal Court.—Chicago, Ill., Aug. 8.—College students and fraternity brothers of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb passed rapidly through the box in Judge Caverly's court today and told of the "queerness" that characterized both youths in school.

"It was all 'lay' testimony to back up the 'expert' testimony from the alienists and psychiatrists that 'Babe' and 'Dickey' were mentally diseased when they attempted to commit the 'perfect crime' by kidnapping and murdering 14 year old Bobby Franks."

"Dickey," they said, was always a nervous boy at school, he had fainting spells, he drank a great deal and he was immature, irresponsible and impractical, and his favorite fiction was dime thrillers.

"Babe," they said, was queer because he was always talking about his "superman philosophy" and he had weird ideas of right and wrong such as were summed up in his expression "whatever gives me pleasure is right."

The youths who testified were scarcely older than the two defendants themselves. Half a dozen boys passed in and out of the chair in the first hour of the trial today.

State Attorney Crowe did not take the testimony of these boyish witnesses seriously. Some he put through a sarcastic cross-examination for a minute and others he dismissed without a question.

The defense planned to wind up its presentation of this "lay" testimony today and to conclude its case before Monday with the testimony of two more alienists that the boys are mentally diseased.

The first witness today was Robert Bruce Armstrong, the Loeb family physician at Charlevoix, Michigan. He testified he had treated young Loeb several years ago when the boy had a series of fainting spells following an auto accident.

"Were these spells normal or abnormal?" asked Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel.

"I thought they were the result of the accident," replied the physician. Crowe did not cross-examine him.

Actions When Drunk.
Another classmate of Dicky's, Leonard Lewis, said he had seen Leopold faint several times. He described one New Year's eve when Dicky had been drinking.

"He fainted and fell to the floor," said Lewis. "We put him on a pool table. He was out for about ten minutes. He frothed at the mouth, too."

"Later he became very pugnacious and wanted to beat a couple of waiters."

"As a matter of fact," Crowe said "Dick was drunk at that New Year's eve party and wasn't he?"

"Yes," admitted Lewis.

Dennard Kolb, another fraternity brother of Loeb's at the university, described Loeb as nervous at school, always reading detective stories and thrillers, and about "practical things he was sort of irresponsible."

Smoked Peculiarly.
Theodore Schimberg, a student at the University of Chicago, said Loeb had always been nervous, that he "smoked peculiarly" and that he "seemed always in a state of tension."

"Some times," said Schimberg, "we could never tell around the fraternity house whether Dick was drunk or sober. We used to see him drunk a good deal. He was very childish in his actions."

"What do you mean by childish?" demanded Crowe on cross-examination.

"Sometimes he would come in and not drink when he wasn't. I think that was childish."

Max Western, a graduate at the University of Chicago, and a part time tutor of Leopold, testified he had taught Leopold on the day after Bobby Franks was killed and that he noticed no unusual emotions or actions on the part of the young slayer.

Still another student followed—Wallace Brockway. He also had known Leopold at Chicago and had discussed with him the "superman philosophy" of Nietzsche. Leopold, he said, took this very seriously.

Views Concerning Murderers.
Harry Booth, a classmate of Leopold's at Chicago, said Leopold once told him he was a nihilist. He described an occasion in a class room when Leopold advanced the argument to an instructor that "society should not hold a murderer responsible if the murderer thought he had done right."

Herbert J. Weber, a friend of Leopold's, said Babe once told him he believed that "the individual owed nothing to society" and that "an individual should seek only to please himself."

"He thought he was one of the top notchers," said Weber. "He thought Dicky Loeb was one of the greatest men of the world. He was very egotistic."

"He recognized no moral obligation."

When court recessed at noon the defense had practically completed testimony of lay witnesses, outside of the relatives of the two boys and it was planned to return to the alienists at the afternoon session.

Ellenville Factory Closes.
The Ulster Knife factory of Ellenville, will be closed for two weeks beginning Monday, due to the depression of business.

Ward Reviews Ten Years' Work

Does Not Tell of Personal Efforts to Help Constituents But Only Speaks of What Congress Has Accomplished.

Congressman Charles B. Ward, whose retirement from congress after ten years of useful activity was received by regret by the delegates attending the Ulster County Republican convention Thursday, who have had occasion to require any work of official nature transacted for them or their families or friends, made a clear statement of some of the work which has been accomplished by the five Congresses of which he has been a member.

When introduced to the convention, Congressman Ward said:

"For the past several months I have been carefully considering what was the right thing for me to do, and it is with considerable regret that I have come to the conclusion that I should not be a candidate for reelection."

"It has been my honor and distinction to represent the Twenty-seventh district for five terms, for ten years, and the passing of time has brought about conditions which it is my belief in justice to myself I should not permit my name to be considered. It has come to a condition where if I am going to give you my time and perform the duties of this office as they should be performed, it means continued gross neglect of my own affairs."

"I can never forget and will always remember the loyal support accorded me by the organized Republicans of Ulster county. I make the announcement with regret, but will bear in memory the support I have had here with sincere appreciation."

"I might briefly give you an outline of the legislation which has been considered by the House of Representatives during the time I have been there. These have not all been enacted into law, but this outline will show the variety of important matters which come before Congress during the sessions. This is a mere sketch of the legislation proposed, some of it enacted, while I have been your representative. And I might add that in the closing days of the Sixty-seventh Congress, the upper house, in executive session, confirmed the appointment of a son of Ulster as Collector of the Port of New York, and I am in a position to say that Philip Elting has established a reputation as one of the most efficient and successful collectors the Port ever had."

"From conversations with men from all sections of the country, I am satisfied that no man holds the trust and confidence of this nation as does Calvin Coolidge, and political prophets from all parts of the country predict his election by an unprecedented majority. These prophecies make it apparent there is harmony in the Republican ranks and it is believed every Republican is coming out to vote. If we do our part in maintaining harmony and getting out the vote, we will be well repaid by the landslide for Coolidge and Dawes." (Applause.)

The outline of legislation read by Congressman Ward was principally covering the period preceding and following the World War, and during the war itself, when he voted for the administration measures which made it possible for the United States to raise the army which won the war.

Davis Goes to West Virginia

Democratic Candidate Receives Formal Notification of Nomination Monday Night at Home Town.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 8.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, will leave here tonight for Clarksburg, West Va., where he will receive his formal notification of the nomination next Monday. He visited his headquarters here today and gave final instructions to his workers in connection with the opening of his campaign following the delivery of his acceptance speech.

The candidate has not yet decided whether he will remain in his home town in West Virginia after his speech or return immediately to Locust Valley, Long Island. Mrs. Davis is already in Clarksburg.

At the Franklin D. Roosevelt basket picnic in Poughkeepsie last night, both Mr. Davis and Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, referred to honesty in government as being overshadowing issue of the coming campaign.

"A Democrat is one who wants the record of his party remembered," Davis said. "A Republican is one who wants the record of his party forgotten."

Governor Smith attacked the Republican state and national party for "failure to pass constructive legislation."

Suzanne Not Out of Game.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Aug. 8.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French woman tennis champion, who has been ill, indignantly denied today that she would give up tennis entirely. "Although I was forced to abandon the games at Wimbledon and in the Olympics, I hope to resume matches as soon as I get well," said Mlle. Lenglen. "I am now resting up under the doctor's care."

Free Plans for Roadside Stands

The Standard Oil Company of New York has had plans and specifications for roadside refreshment stands drawn up by a famous firm of New York architects, Carrere & Hastings, Shreve & Lamb, which represent the most expert advice that could be obtained. The object in preparing these plans and distributing them broadcast to whosoever may be interested has been to render a service to the public at large, and to motorists in particular.

The ubiquitous shack—the so-called hot dog stand—is not only a thing unbecomingly ugly, but when placed almost helter-skelter along our great highways, and directly abutting thereto, it contributes nothing to the beauty of the landscape, and very little to the comfort and refreshment of the passing motorist. After all, it is relatively as cheap to build a beautiful structure of this nature as a makeshift one. Hitherto there have been no standardized plans readily available and it was with the idea of meeting this lack that these plans were prepared and offered gratuitously to anyone interested in the subject. Any interested party can obtain copies of the plans and specifications by applying to the Standard Oil Company of New York, 26 Broadway, New York City.

THE STORY OF THE HOLY NAME SOCIETY

By THE VERY REVEREND M. J. RIPPLE, O. P. P. G.

National Director

(Copyright, 1924, By M. J. Ripple)

(Installation Six)

One of the features of the Holy Name Society is the simplicity of its method of affiliation. One is admitted to membership not by election, but by the declaration of his own desire. He is required to subscribe to three conditions. First, he must have his name registered on the roll of his local organization. Secondly, he must take the Holy Name pledge, and thirdly, he must accept the Holy Name practices.

Holy Name Pledge

The ceremony of admission into the Holy Name Society usually takes place at one of the regular monthly meetings of the Society. Sometimes a special reception is arranged for and a Church service conducted so that the reception will take on a more solemn importance. At the proper time during the religious ceremony of reception into the Society the candidates pronounce their solemn pledge, copy of which is herewith printed:

"Blessed be God.
Blessed be His Holy Name.
Blessed be Jesus Christ true God and true Man.
Blessed be the Name of Jesus.
I believe O Jesus
That Thou art the Christ
The Son of the living God.
I believe all the sacred truths
Which the Holy Catholic Church
Believes and teaches.
I proclaim my love
For the Vicar of Christ on earth.
I promise to give good example
By the regular practice
Of my faith.
In honor of His Divine Name
I pledge myself against perjury
Blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech.
I pledge my loyalty
To the flag of my country
And to the God given principles
Of freedom, justice and happiness
For which it stands.
I pledge my support
To all lawful authority
Both civil and religious
I dedicate my manhood
To the honor of the Sacred Name
Of Jesus.
And beg that He will keep me
Faithful
To these pledges
Until Death."

The candidates usually stand during the declaration of this pledge and all the members of the Society gathered together on the occasion join in the Chorus repeating the words after the Spiritual Director.

The Society enjoins upon its members a definite standard of action with regards to the practices of the Catholic religion. He is required to receive the Sacraments of Penance and Holy Eucharist once each month on the Second Sunday of the month. By compliance with this rule the Holy Name man is able to avail himself of certain special privileges and spiritual advantages which have, from time to time, been granted by the Holy See to members of this Society.

Urged by the force of this monthly compliance with this most sacred Church obligation, the Holy Name man is expected to exemplify the Christian virtues in a more than ordinary degree of perfection. The Society demands that he must practice justice, prudence, courage and temperance in a high degree.

Holy Name Society Hits Straight From The Shoulder

Another one of the great attractions of the Holy Name Society is its manly appeal to piety. Men seem always inclined to associate piety with effeminacy. By some unaccountable contradiction in human nature they seem to be much prouder of their shortcomings in the observance of the decalogue than they are of truly heroic conquests on the side of virtue. Ridicule is a terrible weapon against goodness. It has made more atheists and agnostics than all the reasoning and philosophical systems that have ever been invented. Many men become perfect cowards under the lash of ridicule; others do not hesitate to become criminals rather than submit themselves to ridicule. Sneer at some men for their dependence upon Providence and you may succeed in getting them to deny that there is a Providence. Laugh at a man because he kneels down to pray to God and he may get up and deny for you that there is a God. Smile pityingly upon him in the name of Science for his belief in certain fundamental Christian doctrines and you may succeed in making a perfect sceptic or agnostic out of him. Ridicule him because he is faithful to his faith and he is inclined to be steadfast in his search for truth and you may succeed in making a bigot or a fanatic out of him.

The Holy Name Society demands of its members that they concern themselves about the task of their own personal perfection. It enjoins upon them the secret declaration "Watch me live" advising them that by living well themselves they will induce their neighbors to imitate their example. The Holy Name Society is a deadly enemy against the "professional reformer." Its members are supposed to be kept so busy reforming themselves that they haven't the time to devote to reforming their neighbors. With its deep laid lesson of honor for the name of God and of Christ and respect for the divine law, the Holy Name Society becomes the Church's automatic answer to the principal social evils of the day.

Holy Name Society Answer to Atheism

One of our great American Universities has for years enjoyed the reputation of being a hotbed of atheism. Many high class boys and girls of solid and honest Christian parentage have entered its halls as Christian angels and have left them little more than well trained intellectual animals. No system of education can break down the sense of moral responsibility in a man by blasting away the rocks of belief in the existence of God and the Divinity of Christ from under his feet and leave him an improved human being. A shocking murder was recently the outward expression of an atheistic soul that boldly declared that it should not be deprived of any thrill that life had to give. The Holy Name Society is the Church's answer to this intellectual crime.

Holy Name Society Answer to Divorce

The nation is rocking as from an earthquake with countless daily shocks of our divorce courts. Divorces always saturated with scandal and a morbid history of sin and crime reflect very little the teachings in the sermon on the Mount or the epistles of St. Paul. The Holy Name Society with its strenuous advocacy of the sanctity of marriage is the Church's answer to the modern divorce evil. One of the Ten Commandments reads "Thou Shalt Not Steal." But our nation is so filled with robbers and burglars and bandits that we do not seem to have room enough in our public newspapers every day to give complete accounts of all their depredations. A taxicab driver the other day, after having dismissed a fare, found $75,000 worth of jewels in his taxicab. He did the ordinary thing which every Christian man has been taught to do for two thousand years. He simply looked up the owner of the jewels and restored the property. His very ordinary act of honesty was almost as much a shock to the nation at large as was a three million dollar mail robbery which occurred a few days later. The taxicab driver was a Holy Name man. His Society had taught him the Church's answer to burglary, robbery and banditry. The bigot, fanatic, pharisee, all three welded into one covered over with a white sheet stalking the streets and the hidden places after dark, concealing his name and his identity as far as possible from his fellow citizens, understanding not the very fundamental principles of the American form of Government is one of the chief menaces of the Nation. He is the enemy of fraternity, charity and tolerance, but he is always prattling loudly about 100 per cent American citizenship. He is a slacker in war, but in peace is a constant promoter of civil strife. He is a miserable coward at heart and hates with a coward's malice, like the wolf he hunts in droves, but when caught alone flies in terror. The Holy Name Society is the Church's answer to this type of hypocrite who calls himself an American citizen.

SUPPORTS THE FLAG

The Holy Name Society maintains that by reason of its straightforward and open support of the fundamental religious truths and its courageous advocacy of the fundamental religious practices it is doing to the nation a service of inestimable value. It protests that it is giving to America a type of citizen best calculated to perpetuate the great ideals of the Republic. It believes that the future destiny of the country lies in the fidelity with which the coming generations reflect the sturdy colonial virtues of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. And thus firmly entrenched in its traditions six hundred and fifty years ago the Society offers to the nation a spirit of loyalty and patriotism all the more profound because it is all the more deeply religious. The Holy Name leaders of the country invite the attention of all religious minded American citizens to the profound act of worship of the Holy Name, which is the object of their convention in Washington in the week of September 18-21, and it invites every one of its Christian brethren to join, at least in spirit, in their great act of faith in the divinity of Christ and reparations for blasphemy against His Holy Name and in their patriotic act of allegiance to the principles of the American Constitution.

How Raven Aided Cain

The Koran tells us that it was a raven which taught Cain to bury Abel's body. The fratricide, not knowing what to do with it, had carried his brother's corpse about. Then one day a raven came and, like Cain, killed a brother crow, dug a hole with his bill and buried the body in the ground. Cain, watching, took the hint.

What Makes a Gentleman?

It has been said that the true gentleman is aptly described in the fifteenth Psalm: "He that walketh uprightly and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart. He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doeth evil to his neighbors, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor."—Psalm 15:2, 3.

Tie-Dyeing Made Fascinating Art

Instinct for Color and Patience Two of Principal Requirements.

The woman who has passed an apprenticeship to ordinary household dyeing need suffer no qualms in directing her attention to the new tie-dyeing. Apart from being a fascinating occupation, says the Manchester Guardian, it is one that presupposes no particular aptitude for either drawing or painting on the part of the amateur; yet if she possesses patience it offers an opportunity of raising her handwork to the level of a fine art.

It is possible at the outset to buy from any large shop at a reasonable cost boxes containing a complete equipment for this work, but the novice, for a time at least, can dispense with about half of them.

When choosing materials it is well to note that whilst all plain light-colored stuffs are possible victims for the dye-pot, until she regards herself as initiated the novice should confine herself to escape de chine—not, of course, buying new materials for her experiments, but using old blouses and faded odds and ends. After this, the next step is velvet and chiffon, at the end of which time she will have sufficiently mastered the art to experiment where she chooses.

Transferring is the initial and, perhaps, the most crucial step, and one, moreover, in which a pencil is never used. If transferring from a rug, tapestry, or similar article, place five thicknesses of material under the design to be traced, then place linen tracing paper over the design and fasten it with drawing pins. Now perforate the outline of the pattern on the tracing paper, using a needle and keeping the holes very close together. Transfer this tracery to the fabric, pressing all the wrinkles out and obtaining a perfectly smooth surface; fasten it too firmly to allow of any slipping. Next take an old powder puff, fill it with powdered charcoal and pat the pattern carefully until every single perforation has been filled. Remove the transfer from the material very delicately, taking special pains not to blur the design.

Next comes outlining the design in wax, which is most exciting. Prepare wax by melting it in a small aluminum pan; this will be ready for use when it is a slightly smoky condition. The wax must be kept constantly smoking or it will be difficult to handle and will not resist the dye. Use a small light that will retain the temperature of the wax without letting it get on fire. Have the wax the consistency of melted butter that will run freely from the brush when applied. Dip the brush lightly into the side of the pan, pat it against the side until it points, when it is ready for outlining. To obtain the batik effect—that half-like, cobwebby suggestion that spreads like a design over the surface—this waxed surface must be cracked; therefore place the article in a bath of clear cold water. If a heavy crackle is desired, crumple the material and crush it gently with the hands.

Now follows the dyeing proper. Three kinds of dyes can be used in dyeing: aniline dye, acid, or the fast dye, which is most popular. Follow the directions on the packet for mixing. For aniline dye the dye has been bottled as directed, and on one side to cool and on the other certain that it will be ready for use. Dip the material in the dye, and a fourfold muslin cloth to hold it. Test with scraps of material to see if the shade is desirable; add more water if it is too dark, more dye if too light. Be certain, if anxious for an even color, that the vessel holds the article comfortably, and that it is entirely submerged in the liquid. After the right shade has been acquired, rinse at once in clear cold water, in each quart of which one drop of acetic acid has been placed. Hang the article dripping wet on a line in a cool place, so that the wax will not run, remembering never to squeeze.

U. S. Should Not Act as Guardian

By Telegram to The Freeman. Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 8.—Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, today told the Institute of Politics in meeting here that the United States should keep its hands off Central American politics and not try to set itself up as the guardian of the small republic to the south.

The United States, however, has a deep interest in the progress and prosperity of the Central American republics, Rowe asserted, and should lend its moral support and influence to any movement looking toward the federation of the five republics into a Central American union.

Gibbons Favorite Over Bloomfield

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, Aug. 8.—Sixty thousand tickets have been sold for the twenty round bout here tomorrow between Tom Gibbons, St. Paul lightweight, and Jack Bloomfield, of England. It was announced today. Both fighters are in fine condition and confident of winning. Gibbons, who has become immensely popular here, is the favorite. Bloomfield, who is to be married shortly after the fight, said he would go to the United States and challenge Jack Dempsey if he wins.

SEVEN SEEK REWARD OF $500 FOR ARREST OF "BAD BILL"

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star says: Unable to determine just who is entitled to the reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of "Bad Bill" Munroe, the murderer of Andrew Barrett, the Mt. Housatonic hermit, the county, district attorney of the county, has made a motion to have the applicants summoned at a special term of the supreme court to have the matter threshed out. There are seven applicants for the reward and all claim the distinction of leading the authorities to "Bad Bill" as the man who committed the crime. The murder was committed on July 23, 1923, but the body was not discovered for three days after that. Then an investigation was made and suspicion pointed to Munroe as the man wanted. Those claiming the reward are Deputy Sheriff W. Scott Colwell, of this city; Chester McLaughlin, police officer of Port Jervis, Charles L. Lunney, chief of police of Suffern, N. Y.; Edward T. Hayden, reporter of the Beacon Journal; Evaline Barrett, sister of "Bad Bill"; Anna Harris, of Booneton, N. J., a relative of the murderer, and Habel Markle, of Walden.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 8, 1924.

After visiting Mr. Hearst's California ranch Mayor Hylan of New York enthusiastically declared that he saw "a thousand head of cattle grazing peacefully on a thousand hills." Milking must be a strenuous job where each of a thousand cows grazes peacefully on her own separate hill.

COAL AS AN INDEX.

Coal production is intimately connected with tariff protection. There are about 550,000 miners engaged in the mining of bituminous coal, and 160,000 are employed in the anthracite fields. The Coal Section of the U. S. Geological Survey reports that 422,000,000 tons of bituminous and 55,000,000 tons of anthracite were mined in 1922, and it estimates 1923 production at 545,000,000 and 95,000,000 tons, respectively. West Virginia produced 80,000,000 tons of bituminous in 1922 and 100,000,000 tons in 1923, therefore she contributes roughly one-fifth of our bituminous coal, and she employs about 110,000 miners to get it out. Practically 60 per cent of our bituminous production is used by the manufacturing industries, which also consume from 14,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of anthracite annually. The railways also consume a great deal of coal. The more prosperous our people, the greater their coal consumption.

The Statistical Abstract shows that for 1921 about 7,000,000 wage-earners in the manufacturing establishments received wages aggregating something like $8,250,000,000, or an average per man of $1,180 a year, an increase in the amount paid out and the wages per man of more than 100 per cent over 1911. The cost of materials in 1921 was $25,337,000,000, included in which was coal. The year 1921 was a poor year in industry. The Abstract gives the aggregate of wages paid to railroad employees in 1922 as $2,669,000,000 or $1,622 average per man, an increase of 100 per cent in the total paid out, and of 114 per cent in the scale, compared with 1915. And 1922 was not a very good industrial year.

The Republican tariff law was passed September 22, 1922, and 1923 was a hummer in industry. Bituminous coal production increased 30 per cent, 1923 over 1922, and probably that index applied to 1921-2 business would err on the side of underestimation for 1923. Certainly wages were not lower, while the inauguration of the eight-hour day in the steel mills advanced production costs materially.

It may be argued that labor troubles in West Virginia were accountable for curtailed bituminous production in 1922. The answer is that the mines are greatly over-manned and even with strike periods it is not difficult for the miners to catch up with demand. The 1922 coal production kept pace with demand.

It has been frequently stated, after analyses of cost sheets, that labor accounts for from 60 to 75 per cent of the cost of production in the manufacture of goods. This does not include the labor which goes into coal production and other raw materials. According to the foregoing statistics there has been added to the mill payrolls more than $4,000,000,000 since 1914, while about $1,300,000,000 has been added to the cost of rail distribution in the item of railroad wages alone. This relates to 1922. The increase must have been measurably greater during 1923.

With the Democratic tariff policy in operation, as endorsed by Mr. Davis and Mr. Bryan, the domestic production of goods would undoubtedly fall much below the 1922 figures, and that alone would mean a reduction in the amount of bituminous coal need of probably 120,000,000 to 150,000,000 tons compared with 1923. Since the average output per man is about four tons daily, this would mean a curtailment of from 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 working days, or up to two months idle time per miner, which would give the miners ample opportunity to ruminate over the blessings of the Democratic tariff policy, and stimulate their demand for coal mine nationalization with the taxpayers paying the losses.

as contemplated in the Labor program for England. And of course the mill workers would have plenty of time to exchange views with the miners.

If steel is the barometer, coal is the thermometer of the nation's business. And John W. Davis of West Virginia would smash both.

That Body of Yours

WHICH TO OBEY—YOUR DENTIST OR DOCTOR.

You have had swelling of the joints, or pain in joints, or in the back and have gone to your family physician regarding same.

He overhauls you thoroughly and tells you that rheumatism is not a mysterious ailment any more, and that there is some definite cause, that he will try to locate the cause, and with your help get you free from this painful and serious invader.

After finding no evidence of trouble in the tonsils, nor history of sore throat, nor any trouble with the nose or ears, and no history of constipation, he concludes that there is nothing left but the teeth, and there at the roots are some slight areas of infection.

In consultation with your dentist he suggests the removal of those teeth that look suspicious, to say the least.

The dentist in his endeavor to preserve a good grinding surface for you rather hesitates to remove these teeth. He sees more teeth than your doctor, and a great many of them show these slight infections at the roots, and there is no trouble in the joints or elsewhere.

Naturally he is inclined to disagree with your doctor, and you are against the proposition of offending your doctor or your dentist. Now a dentist should know more about teeth than a doctor, and you may therefore feel inclined to do as your dentist advises.

Now this is my point. Your dentist knows more about the teeth than your doctor all right, and often understands the body as a whole very well, but just the same the doctor is treating you for a general condition of the blood, due to some poison, and as he cannot locate the cause anywhere else, he is naturally justified in blaming it on the teeth.

If he asked you to have your teeth removed before investigating every other cause, then you and your dentist would be right in objecting to this.

You see one tiny abscess at the root of a tooth may contain such a virulent poison that your entire system can be poisoned thereby.

Fortunately nine times out of ten the dentist and the doctor agree as to the course to pursue, because a dentist's training now is of such a nature, that he is in a position to appreciate general disturbances of the system.

But, where you are up against this difference in opinion, remember that your doctor is responsible for the relief of your rheumatism, and you must cooperate with him to the fullest extent.

LAND BANK SYSTEM KILLS FARM MORTGAGE

The method for painlessly killing off the farm mortgage offered by the federal land bank system is proving very effective, according to the information service of the N. Y. state farm bureau federation.

A typical case is offered, the name of course disguised, of a farmer-borrower from the Federal Land Bank at Springfield, Mass. This farmer, Mr. Allen, has recently received a loan of four thousand dollars from the Springfield Land Bank. In order to secure this loan he gave a first mortgage on his farm which he bought in 1917.

When Mr. Allen purchased this farm it was in very poor condition; the buildings needed repairing and the land was so run out that only hay enough to winter ten head of cattle was cut the first year. During the seven years he has had the farm, Mr. Allen improved his land so that today this farm is carrying thirty-five head of stock. He has repaired the buildings and added a new cement stable, put electric lights, modern plumbing, and a hot air furnace in the house, and built a garage and milk-house. Last year his receipts from his farm were over $5,000.

Mr. Allen owed an individual who held the first mortgage about $3,000, he owed a national bank $700; his bill to his grain dealer was nearly $200. He wished to put all his obligation in one place and borrowed $4,000 from the Federal Land Bank, securing a non-callable mortgage which will be paid up at the end of twenty years. He will pay $170 every six months and will never be asked to pay any larger amount so long as he keeps up his payments promptly. His rate of interest is only 5 1/4 per cent. By paying $170 every six months, he not only keeps his interest paid but also pays off all of his principal in 20 years.

This is the way provided by the Federal Land Bank of Springfield, Mass., for farmers in New York state to kill off their farm mortgage.

Chautauqua Ends Tonight

In addition to the musical part of the programs, there were two lectures given at the Chautauqua tent on Thursday. The music for the afternoon and evening was furnished by the Colafemina Concert Company, including a tenor soloist, a young lady violinist and a young lady at the piano, all of whom found favor with the audiences. In the afternoon a lecture on "Are You an American?" was given by Carlton Chamberlayne. The speaker advocated living as well as dying for one's country, scored those who gained great wealth at the expense of their country in time of war or peace, and advocated a more literal expression of the brotherhood of man idea by Americans to the strangers who come to their country.

He also advocated voting for the right men for office—men best suited to serve their country and humanity rather than because of their party affiliations.

"Human Nature and Politics" was the subject of a talk given in the evening by Ople Read, newspaper man and lecturer. Mr. Read disclaimed all knowledge of politics, but said he was prepared to tell a lot about human nature. This he did very entertainingly, giving anecdotes of great men who first of all were human beings like the majority of people. As many of the men he described were men of political note, his subject was well covered, and the audience spent an exceptionally pleasant evening.

This is the last day of Chautauqua, and this afternoon the Jolly Juniors were the entertainers, assisted by Miss Helen Waggoner, interpreter of short stories. The program tonight will be a special feature, a comedy-drama, "The Dream Bride."

"THE DREAM BRIDE."

New Song Was Composed Accidentally, Like "After the Ball."

Many things in life come as accidents. D. Orrine Magoune of Cincinnati, Ohio, went from the balm of Florida up to Virginia to work up sales for a land company. The next day after he arrived there, at Charlotte, the weather changed to very cold. Mr. Magoune was staying at a boarding house on Jefferson street, named after the man who wrote the great Declaration of American Independence. There was no fire in the house. He shivered through supper and then went into the parlor. He tried to engage a young lady there in conversation, for he was lonesome as well as cold. She promptly snubbed him, wouldn't talk and soon walked out of the room. After she was gone the gentleman's eyes soon fell on a magnificent piano across the room. This thought came to him: "If I could compose a song that would carry everyone along with it, I wouldn't be snubbed, by an unfeeling young woman; I wouldn't be shivering in a second-class boarding house and I could have my pockets full of money. He went over to the piano and as he sat down to it a streak of music came to mind. He played it and it captured him. He went on playing and spun out a verse, then a chorus. Thinking of what might be good for a title "The Dream Bride" came to mind almost instantly. The next morning he composed a second and third verse.

The song has made a hit in many parts of the country. In Washington, D. C., the author played and sang it in fine homes. The story in the song shows the blessings and happiness that came from the kind act of a girl. The author is now in Kingston.

The torrid zone has a greater rainfall than any other portion of the world, due to the cloud ring that hovers over it. Along the line of the equator thunder-showers are of almost daily occurrence.

WHY Pearls Are Rarely Found in Coconuts.

"The sea hath its pearls," and so have coconuts, though this fact is hardly known to the general public, and probably not to all botanists. This is no doubt due to the extreme rarity of these vegetable pearls, for inquiry from a coconut plantation where 3,000,000 coconuts are opened annually has elicited the reply that not a single pearl has ever been found. It is, therefore, no wonder that so rare an object should be highly prized, and it also accounts for the estimation in which coconut pearls are held by eastern rajahs, who wear them as costly gems. Not that they rival ordinary pearls in beauty or luster, of which, indeed, they have little, but they are far more difficult to obtain.

Like the pearls of the oyster, they are probably a pathological phenomenon. In the case of the ordinary pearl a little inconvenient grain of sand, causing irritation to the oyster, stimulates the latter to secrete around this uncomfortable object a coating of mother-of-pearl, which, gradually increasing layer upon layer, causes the development of a pearl. The coconut pearl, which is formed in a similar way by continued deposition of carbonate of lime around some disturbing center, may grow even to the size of a cherry, and possesses the hardness of an opal.

The first mention in scientific literature of such a concretion in a coconut was made in 1741, and more than a hundred years elapsed before such an occurrence was again recorded, and a description and a chemical analysis of the pearl was given.

It has still to be explained whence the carbonate of lime comes, for normally neither the milk nor the nut contains this substance. Perhaps this may account for the rarity of these pearls. —Exchange.

Why Selenium Is to Play Part in World

Because there is such a lot of it in the moon, selenium is called the "moon-element."

The name of selenium is not new. It has been in the chemistry books for at least a century, but chemists gave it little thought. Fifty years ago a very significant thing happened in Valencia, where the Transatlantic cable touches dry land for the first time after leaving America. The day was hot and the cable apparatus worked badly. Selenium was part of it, and on examination it was found that this element was playing tricks with the sunshine. It is doing the same thing still, but, whilst 50 years ago they were the tricks of a child, today they are becoming an organized and fascinating game of science which will, within a measurable time—some say one year, some much longer—result in television.

Selenium, in short, enables us to translate light into electricity, and thus to make a star ring a bell and a sunbeam talk! That is to say, wherever a beam of light can penetrate in the days when the secret of selenium is fully revealed, it will be able to carry human intelligence and be the instrument of the human will.

Women Who Value Beauty Care For Their Eyes and Fight the Wrinkles

By Henry J. Schireson, M.A., M.D.

Chicago Plastic Surgeon

THE picture frame of a woman's beauty is the setting of her eyes. This setting can make or mar her. The eyes are woman's most compelling charm. Yet without a becoming frame—unwrinkled skin, well-kept eye brows and lovely eyelashes—the beauty of the eyes is lost.

Most persons look upon the eyes as things of great mystery and prefer not to try to beautify them for fear they may harm them through ignorance. They are delicate and sensitive, but it must be understood that they are controlled by nerves and muscles, like other parts of the body, and must be made beautiful by cleansing, exercise and relaxation.

Proper glasses may correct many evils. Others may be corrected in many cases by a little simple, common sense, and scientific care.

FANNIE BRICE AT PRESENT DR. HENRY J. SCHIRESON CHICAGO PLASTIC SURGEON MISS BRICE BEFORE OPERATION BY DR. SCHIRESON TO IMPROVE HER NOSE.

At least twice a day a lotion should be applied in an eye-cup. The eyes should be kept cool and rested. Close them as often as you can. Give up reading if it means eye-strain. Avoid a direct light on the eyes and close them when yawning swiftly moving objects. They should be exercised, too. Close them and see darkness and count twenty. Open them and look at a bright light for the same length of time. Do this ten times. Focus them on a distant object, then on a near object. Then change the focus suddenly to a pencil in front of your eyes. Do this ten times. Describe a circle with your eyes, moving them slowly around. Lay a hot towel over the eyes at night before retiring and a cold one over them on getting up. As for the skin around the eyes, a nourishing and astringent eye cream should be smoothed on the upper and lower lids. Some should be left on before retiring. As it cures through the pores of the skin and nourishes the tissues, and will also soften the skin. Sometimes, however, such treatment of the skin about the eyes cannot remove the damage done by improper care of the eyes. One must take more drastic measures. It is then that plastic surgery must be called into play. Plastic surgery is not a new science. Nostrils were straightened to order in ancient times. The same is true of the eyes. A slight tack

The present vogue grew out of the work on soldiers in military hospitals during the war. Now, as the legacy which the war-torn heroes gave to the woman of to-day, faces can be made over to suit one's taste. Years tumble backward over themselves under the skilled surgeon's knife, and milady becomes once more a young woman. One of the most popular operations I am called upon to do is what is known as "tucking" up the slightly bags above and below the eyes. These bags are caused from worry, neglect and eye strain. The operation is simple and painless and leaves no scar. A slight tack

SAO PAULO, CITY OF MODERN IDEAS

Prosperous and Beautiful Capital of Richest of Brazil's 20 States.

Washington.—Sao Paulo, Brazil, scene of a rebel uprising, is the source of the morning coffee cups all over the world, remarks a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Sao Paulo, the city, is the prosperous and beautiful capital of the richest of Brazil's 20 states. The city has half a million people. The state of Sao Paulo is larger than all New England and Pennsylvania combined. It comprises only one-thirty-second part of Brazil's vast area, but contains one-eighth of the country's population.

"To the visitor it seems as if the state had two major products, coffee and—statistics! Its aggregate acreage of coffee trees exceeds the combined areas of Delaware and Rhode Island. There are more than seven coffee trees in the state for every man, woman and child in the United States. At 30 cents a pound, the world pays Sao Paulo about $340,000,000 annually for her 1,135,000,000 pounds of coffee produced. As a specialized wholesale grocery her coffee business is only to be compared with Cuba's sugar crop.

"Geography, religion and romance are strangely blended in Sao Paulo's coffee. Solomon, for all his wisdom, overlooked a potential source of great wealth, for coffee is generally believed to have originated in Abyssinia, where Solomon's descendants reigned to this day. It was not introduced into Brazil until 1723.

"A Portuguese sailor was the Captain John Smith of Sao Paulo. He married the South American Pocahontas, daughter of the chieftain Tl-birica. That was about 1500. Then came Jesuit missionaries, who are accredited founders of the state, and when they celebrated their first mass on the anniversary of the conversion of St. Paul they named the country for that apostle.

Corn and Potato Move North. "Curiously enough, coffee rules in Brazil, while two indigenous South American crops, corn and the 'Irish' potato, are mainstays in North America.

"Sao Paulo, the city, is purposefully modern, so much so that some of the social and engineering projects were put into effect there while they were still 'paper programs' in North America.

"For years now, when a new schoolhouse is built in Sao Paulo, the school physicians have passed upon the lighting, the kinds of seats to be used and other hygienic details. Indeed, they must even approve the type and its spacing in textbooks before they are adopted.

"An unusual sight of the city is the snake farm. The snakehouses, looking like beehives, cover a large tract. The snakes are the sources of serum used to treat sufferers from the bites of rattlesnakes, the deadly jaracaras, and other venomous reptiles.

"The railroad from Sao Paulo to Santos, the world's foremost coffee port, is famous among engineers the world over. There is a drop of 2,000 feet in seven miles over one section. Steel cables, stationary engines and especially-equipped locomotives are required for the 35-mile run between the two cities. There are 13 tunnels, but the trains emerge from each to disclose some surprising new panorama of wooded mountains, valley of banana or coffee trees, torrential stream or gorge of dizzy depth.

"The road is said to be one of the best-paying in the world. Since the dividends are limited by law, its earnings have gone into sumptuous stations, fine rolling stock and perfected equipment until one visitor remarked that all remaining to be done was the gilding of the tops of the telegraph poles.

Peculiar Geography. "The steep railroad climb from Santos to Sao Paulo gives a hint to the peculiar geography of the state. For nearly 400 miles along its coast is a low belt, narrow in the north and widening to about eighty miles in the south. Here the weather is hot and moist and the crops are bananas, coconuts, vanilla beans and cacao. This lowland is marked by a line of hills, back of which is an undulating plateau, cooler and dryer, where the coffee finds ideal growing conditions.

"Sao Paulo is notable for its varied architecture, ranging from chalet types, Moorish palaces and buildings of the French Renaissance period to modern office structures. Its outlying streets are as plentifully planted with trees and as well interspersed with flower-planted parks as Washington, D. C.

"The port of Santos is given over principally to shipping, but lacks the splendor of many older ports. It has a beautiful beach, where the sand is packed so hard that automobiles may drive to the water's edge.

"The city has a remarkable theater, with a telescopic roof. By means of an electric mechanism this roof may be removed in ten minutes and the building converted into an open-air auditorium. The orchestra chairs are removable, so that shortly after the curtain falls a ballroom is available for dancing."

OGRE AND MERMAIDS

ONCE upon a time there was an Ogre who lived in a castle by the sea and many times he had seen the beautiful mermaids come up to sun themselves on the rocks, but he had never been able to get near enough to speak to them.

While the Ogre possessed some magic power, he was not able to change his form, so he went to a wood witch and asked to be given power to change into a dolphin when he chose, for the Ogre had fallen in love with the mermaids and wished to ask one of them to become his wife. If he could get close enough he would be able, he thought, to ask the one he would choose and tell her he lived in the beautiful castle on the high rocks and could change himself into another form.

This the old witch did, and one morning when the pretty mermaids came to the rocks a big dolphin came swimming along, but before he could speak to them two mermaids leaped to his back and drove him through the water.

Then back to the rocks the mermaids guided him with some seaweed reins they made him take in his mouth, and two more mermaids leaped upon his back and again the poor dolphin was driven through the water.

All day back and forth he traveled, the pretty mermaids laughing with glee at the frolic they were having, and when they at last released him the dolphin was too tired to speak, and flopping itself up on the shore it fell asleep.

When the dolphin awoke it wished itself an ogre at once, and away to the woods he ran to the witch that had given him power to change shape. "Bid me of this power to change to a dolphin," he said to the witch. "I have no wish to win a mermaid for my wife. Such thoughtless creatures as they are would not be the sort of wife for me, and I wish to be sure I shall never again be a dolphin, for if once they caught me I might never escape but always be their slave."

The old witch laughed. "I thought you would not care for those water nymphs," she said. "You can't change the nature of those creatures. They are used to having all the sea creatures for their slaves."

The Ogre began to tremble. "Are you sure I will never become a dolphin again?" he asked. "No," replied the witch, "there is only one way in which you are sure never to take on that form again, and that is to be changed into a rock or a high mountain; but if you remain an ogre you may some day, when near the sea, take on the form of the dolphin."

"Change me into a mountain and make it a high one, where those mermaids can never climb," said the Ogre.

So the witch changed him into a mountain and there, looking down on the sea below, where the mermaids sport in the sun, the Ogre is safe from their spell, and the mermaids sometimes, when they catch a poor dolphin and drive him through the water all day, think they hear a roll of thunder sounding along the mountain top; but it is the mountain who was once the Ogre, laughing to think of what he has escaped.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

ARABELLA

ARABELLA, which is bestowed in all good faith by fond parents, only to be cut down directly to the more convenient Bella, is a name of great power and dignity. It comes from the "eagle" series of Icelandic names, which is responsible for many of the appellatives popular in English speaking countries.

Arabella signifies "eagle heroine". The first lady to bear the name was the granddaughter of William the Lion of Scotland, who married Robert de Quinell. Another Arabella was she, who, with her husband John de Mont-pycon, held the manor of Magdalen Laver in the reign of Henry III.

The Normans, who made radical changes in all names that did not sound like French, cut Arabella down to Arbell. "My Lady of Arabella" was the title of the unfortunate Arabella Stuart, whose history is familiar to all of us. It is chiefly due to this poor lady that Arabella gained such vogue and had such widespread usage in England.

Arabella's talismanic gem is the diamond. It promises her fearlessness, success, and, if set in gold and worn on the left hand, true and abiding love. Thursday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number. The violet is her flower.

YOUR HAND

How to read your characteristics and tendencies—the capabilities or weaknesses that make for success or failure as shown in your palm.

CARRIAGE AND MOTIONS OF THE HANDS

WHEN a person carries the hands in front of the body, or slightly at the side, and moves them continually, or almost always, waving them about as though to keep them from touching anything, or to keep anything from touching them, it is a sign of a nature that is suspicious, looking about for traps, etc. In some subjects, to be judged by other characteristics, this is, of course, a good sign, since it denotes carefulness, watchfulness and a desire to investigate matters before passing judgment upon them.

We sometimes encounter the subject who keeps the hands clasped in front, with the palms together. In very many cases it is a woman who carries the hands thus. She is calm and placid in temper, looking at life through the philosopher's spectacles. Such a person will let the hand be read in a quiet, unobtrusive manner, and is a good "subject." Of course other types will betray their mental and moral characteristics to some extent, at least, by the manner in which they submit their hands to reading.

Developing Character

The palm tree grows beneath a ponderous weight, and even so the character of man. The petty pangs of small daily cares have often bent the character of men, but great misfortunes seldom.—Kosuth.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

NOSEBLEED AND A KEY

IN MANY parts of the country it is believed that a key worn on a chain around the neck will prevent or cure nosebleed. The same superstition is found in many parts of Europe and in Asia. There are superstitions with regard to the key which are of analogous nature. These superstitions would appear to be compounded of two elements; the idea of the ancients with regard to iron as being both a "bane and antidote" in witchcraft and the idea of sympathetic magic. In Asia the iron idea is stressed; in Europe and America the sympathetic magic idea. But in all three regions the mixture is apparent.

In the superstition under consideration the key derives its principal power from the fact that a key is used to lock up things. Therefore, by sympathetic magic a key worn around the neck locks up the nose-bleed and stops it.

An analogy is found in the manner in which the Balkan Slavs in times of epidemic keep the disease from their village. Two women go outside the village, one with a lock and key and one with a kettle of water. The woman with the kettle says: "What do you come for?" to which the woman with the key replies, "I come to lock the village from mishaps." And having turned the key in the lock she throws it into the kettle. This is repeated three times at three different places outside the village and the villagers have greater faith in the efficacy of the ceremony than in all the health boards in existence. For that matter, many an American girl has more confidence in the power of the key around her neck (some say it should be hung down the back) to cure her nosebleed than in the skill of the doctor.

Earl Sande, America's premier jockey, called by some the best rider of all times, had his leg and hip broken when he fell in a race at Saratoga, N. Y., three hours falling on him. It is doubtful if he can ever ride again. Agnes Ayres, Hollywood, Cal., motion picture star, has announced her engagement to S. Mansel Roach, attaché to the Mexican Consulate in San Francisco. "Hank" Gowdy, catcher for the New York Giants, hero of the Rainbow Division in the Argonne and at St. Mihiel, has received from Major General R. L. Bullard an engraved memorial, stating that the new baseball field at Camp Benning, Ga., has been named "Gowdy Field." Maude Adams, America's greatest actress, now 52 years old, has returned to New York from London to arrange for her return to the spoken stage.

BLIND CONGRESSMAN HAS BLIND STENOGRAPHER.

Congressman John L. Cable, of Lima, O., candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, whose eyes were badly injured by splinters while opening a box of fruit, now has a blinded veteran of the World War as his stenographer. His hospital room in Cincinnati has become his campaign headquarters and there Walter Baring, an inmate of the same hospital, takes his dictation direct on a typewriter. Congressman Cable's sight will be restored, but Baring is permanently blind.

THE WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS

FELTS.

Felt hats being now in fashion, interest in their origin is timely. During the early days of the Christian church, good Saint Clement, one day in preparing for a long pilgrimage, put loose wool in his sandals to ease his feet. When he arrived at his destination he found the wool transformed into a thick elastic piece of texture, and for this apparently divine aid he was the patron saint of felt makers. It is unnecessary to say that the good saint did not invent felt making, since, according to the belief of scientists, felt was made long before yarn was spun and cloth woven. The principal use for felt among the ancient Greeks and Romans was for small caps and hats of various shapes. They were worn not only on long journeys, but also in case of sickness. The first really fancy headwear was, perhaps, the "Arcadian hat" made for the Greek philosopher, Menodorus, about 300

B. C. This hat had the 12 signs of the zodiac worked into it.

Ever since that time felt hats were an important article of commerce. The assembly of Virginia, in 1662, offered a premium of 10 pounds of tobacco (the customary medium of exchange in those days) for every good hat made of wool or fur felt, and in 1731 the Company of Feltmakers in London thought it necessary to petition the British Parliament to prohibit the exportation of felt hats from the American Colonies.

When Sultan the Magnificent, the conquering sultan of all the Ottomans, decreed, about 1550, that every soldier in his army was to wear a brimless fez, he created a great field for felt headwear. The early Puritans were satisfied with plain, steep-crowned felts, but the cavaliers under Charles II wore theirs with large brims and curled feathers.

For everyday and for sports felt hats were as rigid with short interruptions well into the beginning of the XIX century when straw bonnets came in specially for the summer months.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

GIANT TORTOISE

The Giant Tortoise had recently been brought to the zoo. He had come with a number of other animals and birds and lizards.

There had been a great collection of them on the boat and there had been people, too—people who had gone to get these animals to bring them to a zoo home.

There were even some penguins on the boat and they were full of interest to everyone.

They were beautiful to look upon. But the Giant Tortoise was satisfied with himself.

"None of them weigh as much as I do. I'm a heavy creature. Four hundred pounds is what I weigh, or I am fast approaching that. And I live to be hundreds of years old."

"I like figures in the hundreds. No two-and-two-make-four business for me."

"I'm in higher arithmetic, I'll have you know!"

The Giant Tortoise looked about him.

"Age," he said, "is so interesting. There are some who talk of youth and beauty."

"Of course, at one time I am young; or, rather, I should say, at one time I was young."

"I'm a couple of hundred years old now and that is not being exactly a baby in arms, as the saying is."

"But why should I talk of youth and beauty? I couldn't really enter such a conversation."

"I speak as though one went into a conversation through a door."

"But I didn't mean that. I meant I couldn't very well talk about youth and beauty, for I am not young and I am not beautiful."

"I suppose I could talk about youth and beauty, but it wouldn't be a wise subject for me to talk upon, as every one would notice me and would say: 'Well, you don't speak from experience, old dear, do you?'"

"Of course I could tell them, as I have told you, that I was young once. It is a habit all creatures have at one time or another."

"It is also a habit they all outgrow!"

"But I couldn't very well talk about beauty. A tortoise is not really beautiful."

"It is interesting, and to me that is more than beautiful. It is as well that such is the case."

"It would be sad if I cared more for beauty than for being interesting."

"Now age is interesting. It is fascinating to live on and see all that goes on about you."

"It is really a very thrilling thing to grow old. I don't look much older now than I will fifty years from now, and that, too, is nice."

"But think of all I have seen. Think of all I will see."

"I shall enjoy this good old world for a long, long time. Yes, I think I am very interesting and very fortunate."

"I would gladly give up being beautiful for the sake of being able to live a long, long life."

"In fact, I have done this very thing. They will come to see me here, just as they have been doing during the past few weeks, and just as my relatives say they have done during the past, and they will say: 'Oh, how strange to be so old and to grow so much older still!'"

"But in their hearts I think they will envy me. I have a great advantage in this matter of age."

"Oh, it is a great advantage. Youth and beauty are too fickle for me."

"I like good loyal old age best."

"Yes, give Giant Tortoise good loyal old age every time, instead of youth and beauty!"

Riddles

How can you spell dried grass with only three letters? Hay.

Why do we buy shoes? Because we cannot get them for nothing.

What sense pleases you most in a disagreeable companion? Absence.

What is that which is so brittle that you have only to name it to break it? Silence.

Why is an empty room like a room full of married people? Because there is not a single person in it.

If you throw a stone into the water, what does it become before it reaches the bottom? It becomes wet.

Why is it difficult for sailors to work on two-masted ships? Because no man can serve two masters well.

Who was the first whistler and what tunes did he whistle? The wind was the first whistler, and he whistled "Over the hills and far away."

HOT WEATHER DESSERTS

There are few people who do not enjoy a well-flavored and properly cooked custard.

When well chilled, it takes the place of more elaborate frozen desserts.

Butterscotch Custard.—Put three-fourths of a cupful of brown sugar in the top of a double boiler with two tablespoonfuls of butter, stir until it begins to boil, then boil and stir one minute, using great care to keep it from burning. Add two cupfuls of milk and place over boiling water. Mix three egg yolks with a few grains of salt and break up with a fork. When the milk is scalded and sugar dissolved, add it slowly to the eggs. Return to the double boiler; stir and cook until the mixture coats a spoon. Strain and chill, adding a teaspoonful of vanilla just before serving. This is a delicious sauce to serve with snow pudding or other puddings prepared from gelatin or cornstarch.

Bavarian Butterscotch Cream.—Prepare the Spanish cream and, when it begins to stiffen, fold in one cupful of heavy cream, which has been whipped until stiff with one cupful of a cupful of brown sugar. Chill; remove from the mold and serve with:

Butterscotch Sauce.—Take one and one-fourth cupfuls of brown sugar, one-half cupful of corn syrup, four tablespoonfuls of butter and cook until a soft ball is formed when tried in water. Now add three-fourths of a cupful of thin cream. If served on ice cream, add finely-chopped nuts sprinkled over the dessert. Maple syrup may be substituted for the brown sugar if one has plenty of that delectable sweet.

Raspberry and Currant Frappe.—Boil one quart of water and one-third of a cupful of sugar for ten minutes; then add one and one-third cupfuls of currant juice, two-thirds of a cupful of raspberry juice and freeze.

Asparagus, green peas, beans or carrots, if left over from a meal, may be washed from the sauce and used in salads.

Millions Sent by Parcel Post

Exports by That Method Have Opened the Eyes of Small Manufacturers to Possibilities of Development.

Uncle Sam has joined hands with the exporter and through the help of the parcel post, American goods are now being shipped abroad to the value of approximately two million dollars each month, according to the commerce department.

On the basis of partial figures, exporters using this method are shown to have sold their goods in foreign countries to the value of $8,300,452 during the first five months of the present year. Starting with shipments valued at only $1,036,500 in January, the business has grown to $2,236,803 in May.

Dry goods and clothing with a valuation of $2,110,000 account for one-quarter of the entire trade. Silk goods and silk wearing apparel are the most important item in this classification, followed by cotton goods and cotton clothing, artificial silk manufactures and wool clothing. Optical goods exports amounted to $621,000; leather and manufactures of, $576,000; furs and manufactures of, $551,000; and jewelry and gold manufactures $466,000.

The figures are now available for the first time being the result of a new service recently inaugurated by the commerce department at the urgent request of those industries whose exports have been hitherto considerably underestimated in the trade statistics.

The new figures do not show our total exports by parcel post, according to Director Julius Klein, of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, because they do not include shipments valued at less than $25. It is estimated that there are at least half a million such shipments each month. Parcel post business of this class is so great in fact that the cost of compiling the figures would be excessive and out of proportion to the value of the data thus collected.

Commenting on the significance of the new figures, Director Klein points out that where formerly the average American business man considered foreign sales as some "fantastical super-mysterious impossibility," today a mail order from some remote point of the earth for a parcel post package causes no more excitement than a similar request from Boston, Chicago, or San Francisco. The most gratifying feature of this new export development, in Klein's opinion, is the fact that it proves that the American business man is at last viewing foreign trade in its true light—as merely "long distance selling."

"Our main street manufacturers in inland towns, many of whom have never seen salt water, are sending goods abroad as nonchalantly and as expertly as their supposedly better informed rivals with every seaboard facility—and even as efficiently as some of the branches of so-called 'super-exporters' of foreign lands located in American ports who are supposed to have inherited sales instincts from previous generations."

"As soon as the inland producer realized that the doorway of some good foreign customer was no farther away than the nearest post office and that foreign sales can be just as easily negotiated in dollars as can domestic transactions, he has gone after foreign trade in true American style. The whole thing is a striking testimonial to American adaptability and readiness to meet new conditions and opportunities. It means if there is to be any continued uncertainty in the business situation it can be materially corrected or modified by resorting to overseas markets. The products of American farm and factories will be offered for sale on foreign shelves instead of piling up in domestic warehouses awaiting the readjustments of the home market."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Popular Model.

3921. Every "small" person likes comfort, and never more than at playtime. In this neat and simple play suit "fashion" has contrived to develop a practical garment. The smock and knickers are cut in one, so the garment stays "together," and is easy to adjust.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes, 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. A 2 year size will require 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Pongee, crash, linen, gingham, chintz and cretonne are nice for this style.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date fall and winter 1924-1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

GEORGE CANNING.

Every year on the 8th of August the tomb of George Canning, one of the greatest of British statesmen of the 19th century is decked with floral tributes, this date being the anniversary of his death in 1827.

Canning was the big man in European political affairs to see the evil of, and steadily oppose the "Holy Alliance" of Prussia, Austria and Russia. It was he also who recognized the freedom of the new South American Republics in their fight against Spain.

Canning became British prime minister in 1827, but did not live long to wield the power of his position. His last public act was to sign the treaty which delivered Greece from the clutches of Turkey. Then he retired for a rest to the Duke of Devonshire's villa at Chiswick and there, on August 8, he died in the same room where Charles James Fox had breathed his last twenty-one years before.

MRS. DELANY.

Mrs. Delany was a famous woman quack who lived in London about the middle of the eighteenth century. Hundreds of people believed in the curious remedies she prescribed. Here is one of them:

"For a cough mix two or three snails boiled in barley water, or tea water, the person taking it must not know that it has been so prepared."

She advised mothers to use this remedy when little Mary has a cold. She advised mothers when they prepared a large amount of this remedy to renew it every few days, "say, a quart with six or eight snails boiled in it—otherwise it grows too thick."

YACHTING.

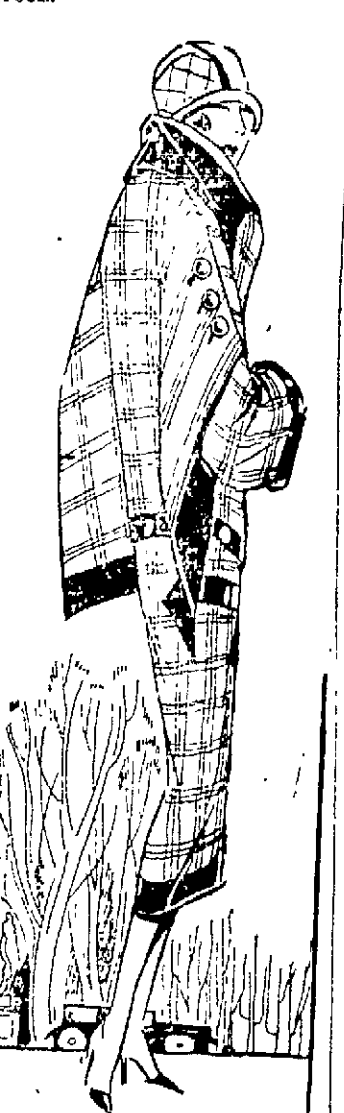

The first international yacht race to establish title to the "America's Cup" was held 54 years ago today over the N. Y. Yacht Club's course, and resulted in a victory for the American cutter "Magic," 97 tons over the English schooner Cambria, 227 tons. The trophy was offered by the British Yacht Squadron, when the schooner "America" visited England in 1851, and came to be called "America's Cup" by reason of the victory of the Yankee craft over all the pleasure boats of England in a race around the Isle of Wight. The America was built in Boston, Mass., and was of 170 tons.

A MOTOR COAT WITH A FRENCH LABEL.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The days in which "any old thing will do to wear in the car" are happily gone forever. Motor coats have to have distinction as well as warmth, and greater license is possible in color and in the use of striking effects generally.

The coat sketched is a Jean Mangin model, influenced perceptibly by the directoire. Gray and green are the colors involved, the facings being green.

Reversible materials are a happy choice for motor or travel coat, and plaids have a recognized standing, as well as large block effects and other two-tone effects.

capas, another how to the directoire, are beginning to be added to other, wide straightline coats; sometimes these capes are in tiers, usually three.

Coats which are important from the angle of future use, are inclined to shawl collars wholly or in part of fur. In league with the feeling for ensemble or three-piece costumes, it is expedient to choose one's coat with an eye to the suitability with the frock or frocks with which it is to be worn. The lining often provides the connecting link. A plain coat lined with plaid just naturally has an affinity for a plaid frock. (Copyright, 1924, Fairchild.)

the Forest Service.

This tendency is farther advanced in the northeast than in the south where many lumber companies and pulp and paper manufacturers are extensively reforesting their cut-over timber lands and other waste land by planting young trees.

The state nurseries in both New York and Pennsylvania have been taxed to their capacity this year and the necessity has appeared for the establishment of local tree nurseries by communities, municipalities and private concerns in order to supply the demand. Something has already been started in this direction in New York.

Fifteen years ago the idea of reforesting cut-over land among the industries was practically unknown. With but few exceptions the practice was to cut all the trees in sight that could be used with no regard to preserving the second growth, the future tree supply being left to take care of itself.

Nothing indicates quite so well the necessity for producing cheaper wood and an adequate supply of it in this country than the progress in reforestation and the growing interest on the part of the industries as well as the public in planting forest trees.

Long George Kelly of Giants Is Marvel of Baseball

This first baseman is the marvel of baseball this year. He hit three home runs and batted in all the eight runs his team made against the Reds June 14. He is hitting .372. His fielding is uncanny. In the picture is shown his remarkable reach. Kelly's actual reach, forward into the infield from the base for a low throw, is 7 feet, 6 inches, from toe on the sack to clutching fingers taking the ball from off the top of the grass blades. The average man cannot reach six feet thusly and catch a ball.

Last spring down in the training camp they started to sing "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" over the Giants first sacker, all because of his weak hitting in Florida practice games. And nobody seemed to be able to see him; even McGraw's sight was getting dim as he looked out where long, lank, solemn, earnest Kelly stood around. And then the season opened and Kelly opened up on his greatest major year. His timely hitting kept the Giants in first place until their pitching staff began to function. Kelly is among the first five, if you please, above Frisch and Young. But it was his exploit of hitting three home runs in one day against Cincinnati on June 14 and batting in or scoring all of New York's eight runs that brought him bright and sudden fame. And this, mind you, was the second time Kelly had hit three homes in one game. Last year he did that little thing against Chicago.

Kelly's fielding is even more wonderful than his hitting. Jake Daubert, long king of first sackers, recently pronounced Kelly the best infielder of the game today. His reach is uncanny. He not alone reaches higher in the air than any man in the game, but he can reach further in after wild heaves than seems humanly possible. He seems to uncoil and stretch like a constrictor serpent.

They use to pan Kelly, now the king at the Polo Grounds. He fought up hill all the way to his major league greatness. Kelly hit for an average of exactly .127 his first three years in New York. No wonder they panned him. But McGraw's faith in the lank one never wavered. He sent him to Rochester on option. Called him back and then his game heart and natural gifts brought him into his royal own.

Throwing Arm Still
of Big Importance

Ability to throw far and accurately, once a vital feature of outfield play, no longer is given the consideration that it deserves, observes Ross Youngs, outfielder of the New York Giants.

The lively ball seems to have created the impression among outfielders that they are no longer expected to throw men out at the different bases.

This is an unfortunate mistake.

I take great pride in my throwing, always have, and still believe there is a big opportunity for the outfielder who can throw accurately and with judgment.

I am in accord with Hughie Jennings, who says more ball games are lost by outfielders throwing the ball to the wrong place than on dropped fly balls.

Don't get into a rut.

FIRST REQUISITE OF SUCCESSFUL PLAYER"Play the Ball," Is Tip Given by Scott of the Yankees.

Learning to play the ball always on the big bound is the first requisite of a successful short stop, says Everett Scott, short stop of the Yankees.

Playing "heads up" baseball at all times would be my second bit of advice to any shortstop who aspires to make the big league.

By "heads up" baseball I mean to make a study of your batters, be alive to every situation, figure out what you are going to do with the ball when you get it, so as to make the wisest possible play.

A ground ball is difficult to handle only when the fielder plays it badly and gets it between bounds. This happens often, even to the most expert infielders in the major leagues.

When a ground ball is hit in the general direction of the shortstop he must figure the number of bounds the ball will take before it reaches him and play it accordingly.

On a certain ball it may be necessary for the shortstop to back up a couple of steps to be in a proper position to receive it. On another ball it may call for the fielder to run in three or four steps to meet it.

In the parlance of the ball field, getting a ground hit on the proper bound is known as "playing the ball." The big bound is always the proper bound, making it easy to handle.

When a fielder is not taking a grounder on the big bound he is letting the ball play him and then trouble starts.

Ezzell Is Hard Hitter

Homer E. Ezzell, third baseman who was traded by the St. Louis Browns to the Boston Americans for Norman McMillan, is playing a nice game for the Hub outfit. Ezzell is known as a consistent swatter of the ball.

Fashion and Its Dictates

Fashion is a tyrant from which nothing frees us. We must suit ourselves to its fantastic tastes. But being compelled to live under its foolish laws, the wise man is never the first to follow, nor the last to keep them. Pascal.

As a feature of class day exercises at Vassar, girl students defeated their fathers in a baseball game. The score was 13 to 10.

Honduras has gone into the fight-promoting business, having learned there is more money in boxing bouts than in revolutions.

Several women have qualified to act as markers and referees in this year's championship tournament of the Pacific Northwest Golf association.

Early in the history of the Yale-Harvard boat race the event was rowed over a two-mile course, which was increased to three miles in 1855 and to four miles in 1876.

Canada has nearly 350 golf clubs and more than $25,000,000 has been invested in land and buildings. The amount spent each year on playing golf in the Dominion easily exceeds that figure.

Tell Girls

And women what I do for you
By Edna Wallace Hopper

My office sends me countless letters which thank me for new beauty and new youth. Please don't do that. Just tell to other girls and women what you've found.

I am simply passing on to others what great scientists gave me. The helps that made me a famous beauty, then kept my youth and beauty to my grand old age.

These helps number 22, but I have had them combined in four preparations—Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream. When you use Photo 1923 any one of them you apply quite a number of the best beauty helps in existence.

One is a cold cream which I call Youth Cream. It combines products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster, feed and protect the skin. I use it as a night cream, also daytimes as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. I have never heard of a woman which brings anything like its results.

Now I am placing my Youth Cream—just as I use it—at every woman's call. All druggists and toilet counters supply it at 50c per jar. Also in 3c tubes. Just ask for Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream. I promise you that as long as you live you'll be very glad you know it, and Photo 1924

I will send you a sample to try, if you wish. Also my Beauty Book. Just mail this coupon. For beauty's sake, do it now.

Plan to Insure Disarmament

New Plan Being Prepared Giving Germany Assurances of Evacuation of Ruhr and Insuring German Disarmament.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 8.—Evacuation of the Ruhr was the most difficult task confronting the Allied reparations conference today, and it may prolong the sessions into the middle of next week. Optimism was expressed in all circles, however, that it would be solved satisfactorily.

French and Belgian experts are drawing up a new plan which gives the Germans assurances of evacuation as the Dawes plan is put into effect, but, at the same time, it will demand measures of control which will insure the disarmament of Germany and the demilitarization of the "Schuipo"—military police.

This plan also may suggest that the British continue to occupy Cologne under a mandate from the League of Nations in order to insure neutrality of the Rhineland.

Committees of experts began work early in the day on the proposals of conference committee number two—dealing with economic evacuation of the Ruhr—and number three—dealing with transfers of reparations from the Germans to the Allies.

Real Silk Institute to Educate Public

Established in Indianapolis for Broadcasting Authentic Information on Industry.

THE Real Silk Institute, aimed to serve silk buyers with authentic information on the uses and value of silk, has been established as a public service research bureau at Indianapolis, Indiana. The Institute comes as a result of an effort to protect silk users from the many inferior grades of merchandise and imitations now on the market and to increase the general public's knowledge of silk.

"The romance and secrets of the silk industry from the spinning of the cocoon to the testing of the finished product, including the tests for fastness to color, tests for silk imitations and for the strength of the weaving qualities of the various fibers are made the common knowledge of every woman who would spend her silk dollar with an eye toward economy," declared George E. Burke, a recognized silk authority, who has been named director in charge of the Institute. Three divisions have been formed to carry on the general work until a more detailed organization can be set up. These divisions, as outlined by Mr. Burke, are general information, fashions and the experimental division, which is subdivided into the testing, investigational and dyeing departments.

Miss Katherine Hartford, fashion expert, formerly of Harper's Bazar, has been appointed head of the fashion division, with offices at 500 Fifth avenue, New York city, and at 66 Rue Notre Dame De Champs, Paris. Miss Hartford will keep the women of America posted on advance silk styles, including the various weaves and the general color trend of fashion. A weekly fashion service will be distributed throughout every hamlet and city from coast to coast.

In the experimental division, the testing laboratory is already at work on experiments on the care of the various kinds and grades of silks. The general information department will serve as a clearing house for shopping information. This service offers to answer by mail any questions the woman may have puzzling her from the size of silk hose to buy from a five and a half foot to the simplest methods for detecting cotton mixed with silk.

FARM POULTRY

MUCH TURKEY LOSS DUE TO BLACKHEAD

A large part of the turkey losses seem to be due to blackhead. Various medicines have been recommended for this disease and recently the Ipecac treatment has received a great deal of publicity in hopes that it might be the long-sought-for cure.

Up to the present time I can locate no cases in our section where the Ipecac treatment has given results sufficiently good enough to prove that it is definitely beneficial, says a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. This being the case, I feel that turkey breeders must still rely on the old methods of preventing disease and not depend upon medicines. Inbreeding must be avoided as it often results in weak poults which are subject to a disease like blackhead. Breeding from mature stock seems to produce more resistant poults than those from young breeding stock.

Turkeys that range with farm poultry of all kinds seem more apt to have blackhead as they are often scratching in the dirt of the other birds. Plenty of sour milk in the turkey ration seems to help the poults to resist blackhead. The sour milk is not a cure but it does stimulate a rapid, vigorous growth and this in turn helps to keep down digestive disorders which might weaken the poults and make them subject to blackhead.

It is difficult to raise poults on land where blackhead has been prevalent and some breeders have cleaned up their premises by ceasing to raise turkeys for a year or two. Then they obtain clean breeding stock and have better success. At present there are many farmers who might have good success with turkeys because none of the birds have ranged on their farm for five or ten years or more and the soil is probably entirely free from the disease.

Profit Made in Guinea Broilers and Roasters

The guinea hen is a good layer, but on account of the wild gamey flavor, the eggs have never had an extensive sale for table use. However, to turn these eggs into young broilers or roasters, a considerable profit will be derived. The flesh is the nearest substitute we have for the wild game.

The guinea is of a roving disposition, and one of the best known destroyers of insects.

The laying season starts in early April and continues until October, the hen laying as many as 120 eggs in a season. In the early part of the season it is not advisable to let the guinea hen hatch a brood, as she is of too restless a nature, and will not give her young the proper attention. But after the first of July, on account of the warm weather, she will be more quiet, and she can be safely entrusted with a brood.

It requires four weeks to hatch out guineas. The hen always hides her nest, and that, too, in some obscure place. As they come off the nest they give a shrill cry, and in this way their hiding place can be detected. All the hens of a flock are apt to lay in one nest, and in taking away these eggs they should not be touched with the hands, for if the hen discovers that the nest has been touched she will desert it and hunt another place. But if the eggs are removed with a stick she will not leave the nest, even if the eggs are taken out nearly every day.

Overcrowding Is One of Most Common Mistakes

Overcrowding is one of the most common mistakes made in growing chickens. Overcrowding of the baby chicks usually corrects itself by the simple method of the chicks dying from day to day until the number that can be accommodated with air is left. Any condition that depletes the vitality of the chick is apt to bring on a looseness of the bowels.

All cases of diarrhea are not the infectious white diarrhea; many of them could have been prevented by providing more room for the chicks; the diarrhea is merely an evidence of overcrowding.

When the young stock have reached the sex-conscious age, the sexes should be separated. Separation of the sexes promotes the growth of each.

Wet Feeds for Chicks

A few breeders say they have good results with wet feeds for baby chicks. Blaine many breeders fall with this system, we do not recommend it. Clean dry grains after the rolled oats becomes offensive to the chicks is the safest feed. Sour milk is very important in the feeding rations of baby chicks.

Origin of Pekin Duck

The Pekin duck is of Asiatic origin, and was imported to this country from China, about thirty years ago. A traveler who saw them about the streets of Peking mistook them for small white geese at first, but upon finding them ducks, was so impressed with their snow white plumage and noble carriage that he secured some of their eggs. They were brought to Hong-Kong and hatched, and in due time the birds were shipped to New York.

Lasting Cookies
The first batch of cookies I ever made I mixed "by ear," writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal. I thought the idea was to get as much flour into the dough as possible. I did. They were anemic looking and hard as marble. A couple of months later I came across a few of them in the cookie jar. I took one of the pale, hard slabs, addressed it to a friend, put a stamp on it and mailed it. My friend's baby cut two teeth on it, broke a window pane with it and it is still a treasure of his toy box.

Rifton Electric Rates Reduced

United Hudson Electric Company Announces Reduction of 15 Per Cent. Effective August 25, for Village of Rifton—Rates the Same as Other Communities.

In recognition of the fact that the village of Rifton has developed into a live community and is proving a steady user of electric energy, the United Hudson Electric Corporation has made an adjustment in its rates for the village amounting to an average reduction of about 15 per cent, to become effective August 25.

When the rate for Rifton was established in 1920 it was assumed that the consumption would be of a seasonal character and not of sufficient volume to entitle its residents to a lower rate. Since that time Rifton has given surprising evidence of vitality, setting at naught the prediction that the place was doomed to extinction. Not long ago a New York newspaper carried an article picturing Rifton as a "deserted village." But in spite of the prophets, Rifton has been steadily progressing, and its rates have been increasing and there has been a lively demand for homes.

Records kept by the electric company show that the volume of electric energy consumed in such as to entitle the people of Rifton to lower rates, and accordingly the company has voluntarily reduced the schedule.

The United Hudson Company, in announcing the new schedule states, "In fixing rates for electric energy it is necessary to take into account a number of factors. In thickly settled communities where the number of users per mile of distributing system is high, and where the use of electricity is continuous throughout the year, and where the quantity consumed is of considerable volume, it is possible to fix a lower rate than in thinly settled communities. The investment in pole lines per mile is the same whether there are one or a hundred customers on the line. If there is but one customer naturally the cost of supplying current to that one customer is high. If there are a hundred customers on the same mile of line, the overhead on the investment is spread out over the larger number of users.

"Another important factor in fixing rates is the continuity of use. In some districts where electricity is used only in the summer months, the rate is fixed accordingly, because the carrying charges on the overhead line go on just the same.

"At Rifton, when the rates were fixed several years ago the conditions were such that it was necessary to fix a comparatively high rate. It has been gratifying to observe that Rifton is recovering some of its old activity. Electricity is being used the year round and the amount while still very small in comparison with that used in larger villages and cities, is such as to entitle the community to a lower rate. Accordingly we are very glad to announce that the rate for electricity in Rifton is to be the same as for Ulster Park, Esopus, West Park and other communities."

Y. M. C. A. JUNIOR NINE BEAT CAMP WALLKILL.

The Y. M. C. A. Junior baseball team defeated the Camp Wallkill team of New Paltz on the Athletic Field by a score of 9 to 8. The feature of the game was the pitching of DuBois who allowed only two hits in the five innings. Both of these were made by D. Spengler the catcher on the Camp Wallkill team. Merrill also touched up the Camp Wallkill pitcher for two hits in two times to the bat.

A return game will be played at Camp Wallkill on Friday, August 15, when the Y. M. C. A. team will be the guests of the camp.

FRENCH INDO-CHINA

An Interchange of Gossip in French-Indo-China.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

France's empire in the Far East—French Indo-China—has been brought dramatically out of oblivion for the rest of the world by the spectacular flight of Captain D'Oisy, French aviator, who in only a few days' flying time recently tied Paris to the eastern capitals, Saigon and Hanoi.

Even the location and make-up of French Indo-China are hazy matters in most Western minds. Southern Asia consists of a series of peninsulas beginning in the west with Arabia. Then follow gigantic India, and the narrow, long drawn out Malay peninsula. French Indo-China is just beyond the latter and is the blinn, thumb-like projection that completes the South Asiatic peninsula series.

This French territory is in practically the same latitude as the Northern Philippines and Central America, a land in the edge of the tropics, warm and damp and tremendously productive. Dense forests cover much of the country, both lowland and mountainous, and many parts have not been developed or even explored.

French Indo-China, which is half again as large as France, consists of Cochinchina in the southeast, a full-fledged French colony with a representative in the house of deputies; and the protectorates of Cambodia, Annam, Tongking and Laos. Tongking, however, is really more than a protectorate. The other units of that class have their native kings assisted by French residents. Tongking has neither king nor viceroy, but is administered entirely by French officials. The various provinces that make up the French Indo-Chinese union have a total population of more than 17,000,000.

The southern territory which is tributary to Saigon is a highly productive agricultural country. It is, in fact, the second largest rice producing region in the world being surpassed only by nearby Burma. Sugar, too, is produced in large quantities. Cambodia may play a very important economic role in the future for it is an excellent cotton country.

Saigon and Hanoi.

Saigon, the capital of Cochinchina, was until 1902 also the administrative center of all the French territories of the union. That distinction has now passed on to Hanoi. The city proper has a population of about 85,000, but its suburbs swell the total to upward of 200,000. About 10,000 Frenchmen live in Saigon exclusive of soldiers.

With its well-kept, wide, shady streets, and its beautiful public buildings and statues, Saigon is a sort of Washington of the Far East. The city is situated 34 miles from the sea on the Saigon river and has a harbor thronged with merchant vessels and French naval craft.

Hanoi, on which has fallen the mantle of administrative center of the French Far East, is far north of Saigon near the Chinese border. This is a city of 125,000 with almost as many Frenchmen as Saigon. It has ample possibilities for beautification and the French have made the most of them. Hanoi lies on the Red river 80 miles from sea. In addition to the river which serves as a transportation artery, the city and its environs are dotted with a number of lakes ranging from Le Petit Lac, perhaps half a square mile in area, to Le Grand Lac, many times its size.

Both Saigon and Hanoi are unfailing objects of wonder to the few tourists who poke about in the odd corners of the Far East. In them France has accomplished as much as America has done with Manila or Great Britain with Hong Kong or Singapore; and in addition to giving them industries, cleaning them and supplying sanitation, public utilities and good rule, the French have greatly beautified them.

Bits of these cities seem veritable parts of Paris set down barely outside the jungle. Well-shaded and perfectly maintained boulevards cross both cities, and lining them or set in nearby parks are monumental public buildings in the best French architecture.

Industries are flourishing. The major parts of both Saigon and Hanoi are given over to native quarters, but those portions of the cities are apart from the beautiful and Europeanized sections. As in Chinese cities, the native stores are confined to special quarters. There is thus a section in which dwell copper and brass smiths, another for potters, another for cabinetmakers, etc.

Railroads serve both Saigon and Hanoi; and monumental "union stations," puffing locomotives, and the familiar long spans of steel, vaulting broad rivers, take one's thoughts again back to the West.

Because Western civilization is based on industrialism even when it is transplanted to the ends of the earth, it was inevitable that Hanoi should supersede Saigon in importance. In the region tributary to Hanoi are those two great essentials to modern development: coal and iron. This is the only French overseas possession, incidentally, that is rich in these minerals. Available, too, are tin, zinc and tungsten. Silk worms flourish in Tongking, furnishing still other material for industry, and mills have been set up to utilize Cambodian and Chinese cotton.

On the agricultural side, in addition to its huge rice crop and its sugar, Indo-China furnishes large amounts of tea, cocoa and coffee. From its warmer regions, too, come considerable quantities of spices. Cabinet woods are floated down the streams from the interior forests.

Four-fifths of the inhabitants of French Indo-China are Annamese, a people in characteristics midway between the Chinese and the Hindus. They have borrowed in culture and religion from both the latter peoples. In the rough, inaccessible parts of the country are the Laos, a people not far above savagery.

Mekong a Great River.

The great river of French Indo-China is the Mekong which rises in central Tibet and flows south, finally running through the center of the French peninsula. In the rainy season this stream carries a tremendous volume of water, overflowing its banks and turning large areas of forest into marshes. The river is connected with a large lake, Tonle Sap, in central Cambodia, which is fed by an arm of the Mekong part of the year and in turn feeds that river the remainder of the year. The jungles and forests of French Indo-China, like those of Siam, harbor wild elephants, tigers, wild boars, and rhinoceroses. Crocodiles frequent the Mekong, and numerous snakes are found in the forests.

France's influence in Indo-China grew from missionary activity in the seventeenth century. In 1774 the king of Annam took refuge with the French bishop in Saigon. In 1802 French military aid was given to this fugitive monarch and he regained his throne. Privileges were extended to the French, but later monarchs began to persecute them. Because of this the French began military operations in Cochinchina in the sixties of the Nineteenth century, at the same time that their armies were seeking on the other side of the world to make Maximilian emperor of Mexico.

By 1867 they had conquered Cochinchina and had established a protectorate over adjoining Cambodia. Other protectorates have been set up in the peninsula in the succeeding years, the last over Laos in 1893. The governor-generalship of the Indo-Chinese union was established in 1897.

New York, Aug. 8.—The stock market made no immediate response to the important developments which followed the close of yesterday's market, chief among which were the marking down of the Federal reserve bank discount rate to 3 per cent, the swift ascent of sterling exchange quotations following cable reports of the approaching agreement on the details of the Dawes reparation plan and the publication from inspired sources, of details of the exchange of stock in the Nickel Plate merger.

Some stocks were marked slightly higher at the start of the market but for the most part stock movements were a repetition of the irregular and featureless sessions of the last few days with profit taking in some sections going on under cover of strength in others. The railroad stocks were by far the most prominent, though some of the high priced dividend stocks like Delaware and Lackawanna, Canadian Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line were as active as the merger stocks and equally buoyant in price movements.

Some advances in the high priced specialty stocks lived up to the market in the first hour but prices reached in this period were for some of those stocks the highest of the day. Another good record was made by the steel stocks under the leadership of U. S. Steel. Independent steel stocks also showed a tendency to rally from the reactionary trend which featured them in the last few sessions. Oil stocks were extremely inactive but price trends were generally higher with the best showing being made by Pan-American Petroleum Co.

A forward movement in the equipment stocks in the early afternoon followed reports of new contemplated equipment buying by the railroad companies in anticipation of heavy freight movements this fall. Coppers were inclined to reflect the constant improvement in the copper metals markets.

Erratic movements characterized both the cotton and grain markets, the former selling off sharply on publication of the government's crop report. Sterling exchange made further response to the favorable developments in London, quotations going to nearly $4.53 today.

Fallon Case Going to Jury

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 8.—William J. Fallon, criminal lawyer this afternoon began summing the evidence in his trial on a charge of jury bribing before Federal Judge George W. McClintic and a jury.

Fallon demanded that Judge McClintic dismiss the jury and declare a mistrial. Fallon has been acting as his own attorney. The judge overruled the motion.

Fallon's motion came during his cross-examination of Charles L. Craig, controller of New York city, a witness for the government.

Fallon was attempting to connect the witness with the taking of money in connection with the construction of New York city's court house.

Judge McClintic frequently interrupted to throw out some of the questions. Fallon finally became angered and turned to the judge and demanded the jury be discharged and a mistrial declared.

Van Aken-Van Wagenen.

The First Reformed Dutch Church was the scene on Thursday evening of a beautiful wedding when at 8 o'clock Miss Margaret Parker Van Wagenen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen of this city, and Rufus Cole Van Aken, son of Mrs. Glennie Fine Van Aken of Park side avenue, Brooklyn, were united in marriage by the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, pastor of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church. The church was artistically decorated with palms, lilies, white hydrangeas, asparagus fern and smilax. Miss Miriam Pitts, a schoolmate of the bride, presided at the organ, giving a delightful organ recital as the many guests assembled, and then rendering the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party approached. The bride was attired in a robe of white crepe satin with a charmingly lace, wearing a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower of bride roses and swansons, and was led to the altar by her father, Dr. Van Wagenen, who gave her in marriage. The maid of honor was Miss Mildred Randall of Riverhead, Long Island, who wore a gown of blue crepe chiffon, trimmed with cream fillet lace, a bandeau of gilt flowers and gilt slippers and carried an armful of pink roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Jeanette Deyo of Elmira, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Natalie Van Aken, sister of the groom, wore peach georgette trimmed with lace. Both wore bandeaux of silver leaves and silver slippers and carried armfuls of Ophelia roses. The ushers were Gordon Pine of New Paltz and Albert Van Etton of Newark, N. J. Following the ceremony at the church, a reception, attended by the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen on John street. Dr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen, the latter wearing orchid colored beaded georgette, and Mrs. Van Etton, wearing old gold beaded georgette, assisted the bride party in receiving the guests. Delightful music was played by Kendal Zeff, violinist, with Mrs. Putnam Cady at the piano. Ferns, pink roses and smilax handsomely decorated the rooms, a mass of pink rose buds and a fascinating heart-shaped wedding cake vying with each other for the place of honor at the table where the bridal party was seated during the serving of a fine collation. There was a profusion of beautiful and valuable wedding gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch set with diamonds and sapphires; his gift to the best man, platinum cuff links; and to the ushers, gold pen-knives. The bride presented her maid of honor with a string of pearls and the bridesmaids with white-gold cuff pins. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Van Aken left by auto for New York city where they will start Saturday on a month's honeymoon trip to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. On their return they will reside in the Flat-bush section of Brooklyn, where a newly furnished home awaits them. The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and the New Paltz Normal School; she has also been a student of the Columbia University Extension School for two years, and an attendant at the Cornell Summer School, besides being a successful teacher. The groom was born in Ulster county where he spent his early years. He is a graduate of the Kingston High School, class of 1917. He afterwards attended and received his degree of Bachelor of Laws from Lauder from Brooklyn Law School of St. Lawrence University, class of 1921, and won the Lerner prize for the highest grade in the subject of evidence. He also attended Columbia University. He is now engaged in the general practice of the law in New York city, and is associated with the firm of Medina & Sherplock, 165 Broadway. He is a member of The Holland Society of New York.

The Humble Daisy
Children sometimes remove the white petals from daisies and then use the yellow center as pumpkin pies for their dolls' tables. By clipping off the rays to shape a cup and leaving two long ones for strings, with a little ink, a capped grandmother's head and face are made. In literature the daisy has a place second only to the rose. In church lore the daisy is the flower of St. Margaret.

LABOR TURN-OVER IMPOSES BURDEN ON WHOLE COUNTRY

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

No form of waste is more unfortunate than the waste of human material, yet the time of millions of workers in this country is annually wasted through means that are largely preventable.

For example, the average turn-over for industry as a whole in this country, we are told, is 30 per cent. Some 3,500,000 men change jobs an average of once a year. Each time a man changes jobs it means two weeks idleness, and, according to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, which recently compiled elaborate data on these instances of waste in industry, most of the 7,000,000 weeks of lost time due to turnover represents an unnecessary waste of men.

From the same source it is learned that among 11,000,000 men employed in manufacturing industries there is a waste amounting to 12 months unemployment for 1,500,000 to 1,750,000 laborers. This waste is due to the fluctuations in volume of employment and does not include periods of idleness of only two or three days duration, nor does it include idleness due to sickness and accidents, nor any of the 30 per cent turn-over above alluded to.

In the coal industry alone an average of substantially 700,000 men are idle one-third of the time.

Considerably more data might here be quoted along the same line, but sufficient facts have been brought out to indicate one of the most lamentable sources of waste in our country—a waste which not only places an economic burden upon all our citizens, but, what is even more deplorable, constitutes a continual source of unrest and discontent.

There are some underlying causes which render the complete elimination of this wastage of human material impossible, but as Mr. Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics points out in the course of his review of this situation, a very large part of this enforced idleness is preventable.

"Practically all of the labor turn-over," he declares, "could be stopped by humanizing the labor conditions and making some effort to get acquainted with the men."

Useful advertising regularly and conservatively, and results will surely follow.

Republican Convention

court, of being human when dealing with criminals, which the county judge mostly does, and especially in dealing with children, is most important in a judge. So, said Mr. Cushman, he felt highly privileged in presenting Mr. Cook's name, for, in the parlance of the street, "Win loose or draw," the same Andrew J. Cook would be found on election day in the ranks, fighting for the success of the entire Republican ticket, whether he should be selected as the nominee or not.

Van Gaasbeek Seeks Cook.
The nomination of Mr. Cook was seconded by Charles H. Van Gaasbeek of the Second ward.

Walter Nominates Flemming.
Fred J. Walter, of the Eighth ward, nominated Harry H. Flemming. Mr. Walter said:

"The average business man has well defined views of the necessary qualifications of a judge. They may not coincide in every particular with the lawyer's views but there will be no substantial variance as to the fundamental qualifications.

"The judge must be well versed in the law and its practical application. This comes from studious habits and an experience covering a reasonable period of years. He should be intensely human, tempering justice with mercy, a man of sound judgment, enthusiastically interested in good government and willing to do his part.

"There are some who believe that a long period of public service in office is a necessary qualification. Many of our best men in public life spent their years of preparation in private practice and brought to the public office the best possible equipment.

"It is my privilege to bring to you today a candidate, the name of one whom I have known for 45 years, a life long resident of the city of Kingston. He has served as a member and president of the board of education of this city for six years past. He was president of the Young Men's Christian Association when the money was raised and the new building erected. For some years past he has been a member of the board of trustees and treasurer of the City of Kingston Hospital; a practicing lawyer for over 22 years, actively engaged in trial work, connected with a great deal of important litigation in this and adjoining counties, a man who in experience and years will bring to the office of county judge the necessary qualification to insure an administration of the office which I am sure will meet with the commendation of the people of this county, of every class and station.

I bring to you as a candidate for the nomination for the office of county judge the name of Harry H. Flemming, of Kingston.

Flemming Seconded.
Mr. Flemming's nomination was seconded by other delegates of the Eighth ward.

Loughran Nominates Traver.
Former County Clerk Christopher K. Loughran nominated District Attorney Frederick G. Traver. For the past 20 years, said Mr. Loughran, it had been his pleasure to be in attendance at Republican county conventions, for several years he had occupied a position on the platform, but this was the first time it had been his privilege to appear to advocate the nomination of a candidate, and like the two preceding speakers, he would say in regard to his candidate, "We got some too."

His candidate needed no introduction, for everybody knew Frederick G. Traver. He was born in the town of Marlborough where he spent his boyhood, later moving to the town of Shawangunk, where his father now is spending his declining years after a long and useful life in the Methodist ministry. He came to Kingston as a boy in 1898 and took up his residence in the First ward, where he lived for some years, subsequently moving to another ward, but always active in public matters.

Taking up the study of law, Mr. Traver had entered the office of the beloved and respected late district attorney, later county judge, Charles F. Cantline, who regarded him so highly and considered his services so valuable that he made him the first assistant district attorney in fact which the county had ever had. In appreciation of his worth had been shown first by Frederick Stephan when he became district attorney, and further appreciation of his worth was shown by William D. Cunningham during his years as district attorney.

Selected When Needed.
When Mr. Cunningham left the district attorney's office to receive higher honors, the party had looked around for his successor, but it did not have to look far, for with the sixteen years' experience which Mr. Traver had had, the party promptly selected him.

Majorities Show Approval.
And less than one year later the party and the people of the county gave their votes in approval of the manner in which Mr. Traver had conducted his office when in November, 1916, he was put in charge for three years by a majority of more than 4,900 votes, a majority unprecedented up to that time. He was renominated in 1919 and again the people expressed their hearty approval of his conduct of the office when they re-elected him by a majority of more than 6,200.

was raised against the people's approval of his fair and impartial yet vigorous prosecution of crimes and criminals, and he was unanimously renominated and re-elected, receiving practically every one of the 19,000 votes cast for that office.

What was the meaning of all this? Why these re-elections by increasing majorities? It was because the people recognized in him a man in whom they could put full measure of confidence, a man who had been tested and not found wanting. Now the time had come when he has come to ask for this designation and election to the office of county judge. Such was the record of Frederick G. Traver.

Knowledge Necessary.

To the laymen, the powers of the county court are not well known, but by those who do know its powers it is realized that the court's powers have increased until now the court is practically a criminal court. Ulster is one of only five counties in the state on whose judge the legislature has conferred power to try cases of murder in the first degree. The calendar of any term of county court reveals that there are very few civil cases taken up, and everyone knows that the time of the court is taken up principally with criminal trials.

Therefore, it is apparent that the judge of the county court should have a thorough knowledge of criminal law, which is an entirely separate branch of legal procedure, with a code of its own that is not known by the lawyer who tries only civil cases. Trained in the common law under Cantline, Stephan and Cunningham, and then for six years the chief prosecutor of the county, Mr. Traver's knowledge of criminal law made him an expert on that subject in this section of the state.

Dispelling False Rumors.

About election time everybody hears various rumors regarding candidates, and sometimes rumors are circulated at other times. It is said that if Mr. Traver was elected county judge, his position as district attorney would immediately cease. The district attorney of every county is elected to fill the office until his successor is elected and takes office, and if Mr. Traver were elected county judge in November, he would continue to hold the office of district attorney until the thirty-first day of December, and meanwhile this convention would presently select delegates to the state convention to be held at Rochester which would pick the man who will become governor of the state on the first day of January. So much for rumors.

This year witnesses circumstances under which the Republican party is putting forth its best efforts and nominating its best men. The Democrats are wise to this condition and they also are putting forth their best men and they intend to do so in their state and local tickets. Therefore, it behooves Republicans to select as candidates men who can go before the electorate with a record of accomplishment which invites confidence, and the one man who has conclusively proved that he can go before the electors of Ulster county and receive their hearty, sincere and united support is Frederick G. Traver.

Ostrander Nominated.
A delegate from the town of Plattkill nominated DeWitt W. Ostrander of Clintondale, whose nomination was seconded by a delegate from the same district.

Lent Not Mentioned.
The name of Andrew Wright Lent of Highland, who announced his candidacy about the same time that Judge Fowler announced his candidacy last February, was not presented to the convention.

Nominations Closed.
On motion of a delegate, nominations were declared closed, and at 3:40 o'clock Secretary Eckert proceeded with the roll call.

Seven Roll Calls.
Chairman Elting appointed as tellers Raymond Van Buren, representing Judge Fowler; William P. Glass, representing District Attorney Traver; and Christopher P. Roche, representing Mr. Cook.

There were seven roll calls, which resulted as follows:

COMMERCIAL FEEDS.

Many Materials Used In Feed Mixtures—Price Range Too Wide.

The New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva is distributing to the farmers of the state a report by Dr. L. I. Van Slyke, station chemist, on the chemical composition of commercial feeding-stuffs and mixed feed offered for sale in New York from January to July, 1923. These reports are issued at frequent intervals as the chemical analysis of the official samples are completed and serve to show the general tendencies of manufacturers of these products. The careful analysis of feeding-stuffs and fertilizers made at the experiment station to safeguard the farmer and honest manufacturer from unscrupulous producers and dealers is one of the most important services rendered by the station.

Cling to Bamboo Pens

Bamboo writing pens are still favored in India, where they have been in use for over 1,000 years.

six months of 1923, and 537 of them were mixed feeds, the rest being unmixed feeding materials. In the 537 mixed feeds, 120 different ingredients were used, ranging all the way from milk albumen and alfalfa meal through the alphabet to various wheat products and dried yeast grains. Some 221 of the mixed feeds were specially prepared poultry feeds, and this was the largest single group of feeding-stuffs encountered.

Retail prices per ton on several unmixed feeding-stuffs are given and show a wide variation in prices for materials of the same composition. In 16 classes of feeding-stuffs the retail price showed a variation of from $5 to $61 per ton, while in 12 classes the difference between the lowest and highest retail price was more than $10 per ton. According to Dr. Van Slyke, there is no apparent reason why the retail price in any one class of feeding-stuffs should vary more than $5 per ton.

Colonials Win Up-State Again

Schrickman Continue Winning Streak on Barnstorming Trip by Defeating Windors 10 to 4—Game Today at Amsterdam.

The Colonials of this city ran their winning streak up to six on Thursday afternoon when they handed the Windors of North Adams their worst defeat of the year at North Adams by a 10 to 4 score. The Colonials hold one other win over this club, having defeated them in a 14-inning battle here a number of weeks ago.

Demers, who up to yesterday had not lost a game for the North Adams club, was on the mound for the Windors and allowed the Colonials 10 hits, four of which were extra base hits. Demers also received poor support from his team mates as they made seven errors behind him during the eight innings of play.

Harris, former Tannersville and Poughkeepsie Red Sox player, was on the mound for the Colonials and acquitted himself in remarkable style. The local hurler allowed North Adams just seven hits, all of which came after the fourth inning when the Colonials were sporting a six run lead. The Colonials gave Harris perfect support, not one error being charged up against them during the contest. Raskin had a busy day in right field, pulling in five.

Kingston got the jump on their opponents in the first inning of play. Dugan and Deegan both went out but McCue followed them with a single. McCue stole second base and then Raskin hit the ball against the right field wall for a triple, scoring McCue. Schwab sent Raskin in home with a single. Coyle ended the inning by flying out.

The Colonials added four more to their total in the fourth inning. Schwab started the inning with a triple to left center. Coyle scored Schwab when he came through with a double. Flynn sent a grounder down to the third baseman, who fumbled the ball and allowed Coyle to score and Flynn to reach second base. Robins scored Flynn with a single. When Dugan went out Robins apt around to second and then scored when Deegan came through with a single.

The Windors scored two runs in the fifth inning. Hicks walked and then Timothy got the first hit off of Harris when he doubled and scored Hicks. Timothy was advanced when Daly went out and scored when Letade sacrificed. In the seventh inning the North Adams club added another run to their total when Hicks tripled and scored on Daly's single.

The Colonials sent four more runs over in the eighth inning due largely to the fact that the Windors infield blew up completely. Four of the seven errors that the North Adams club were credited with came in this inning and the Colonials ran around the bases at will.

The Windors scored the last run of the game in the eighth inning when Jenston singled and then scored when Burgevin tripled.

The game was called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness.

This afternoon the Colonials are playing in Amsterdam and Ruba Forsythe will likely receive the hurling assignment.

Semi-Finals at Southampton

Three Californians and South African to Fight for Singles Honors—Kinsey Brothers Reach Semi-Finals in Doubles.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Three Californians and one Britisher will fight it out in the invitation tennis tournament at Meadow Club here for the singles bowl. Babe Norton, the South African, will meet Howard O. Kinsey in the upper half, while Harvey Snodgrass, of Los Angeles, and Robert Kinsey will compete in the lower bracket. Both matches were to be the best of three sets instead of five as has been the case in the past. Howard Kinsey's win over John F. Whitbeck was expected, but Snodgrass upset the dope in winning from Norman Brookes, the veteran Australian, and thoroughly deserved his victory.

Four teams reached the semi-finals in doubles. Brookes and Richard E. Schlesinger, Australian entry, plays Snodgrass and Walter Westbrook, the Kinsey brothers meet Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, the excellent Texas pair that put out Hugh G. M. Kelleher and Norton. This latter affair may be considered by some as upset, as the defeated team was seeded in preference to their opponents. On the other hand Kelleher and Norton played together for the first time and are not a high class team.

Howard Kinsey, after dropping the first game in his match with Whitbeck, ran the next four games for a commanding lead. After dropping the sixth Kinsey ran the next two for the set. In the second, Kinsey also lost the first and then won three. Whitbeck played some of his best tennis at this stage, breaking through Kinsey's serve for the first time and tying the score at 3 all. Howard retaliated by winning the Harvard man's delivery and resumed his two game lead. Each won on service, the Californian winning the last game from deuce.

In the other singles, Snodgrass had just what might have been expected—youth and speed. Just that edge which the veteran was unable to handle. Brookes stood in too close on the Californian's service.

Howard Kinsey is expected to reach the finals by beating Norton and, on past dope, Snodgrass is favored to eliminate Robert Kinsey in the match, although "Old Man Dope" has been upset many times.

In the doubles, Snodgrass and Westbrook reached the semi-finals by beating Fritz Mercur and Thomas Mangin in straight sets. Schlesinger and Brookes put out Emerson and Lang, losing only two games in each stanza.
